The Robot Battleship All Advise Him A Happy Mother One Small Baby

By Arthur Brisbane

THE OLD BATTLESHIP Utah is to be a "robot" battleship, without a man aboard, directed by radio control far away. Radio will fire bombs, guns, big and small, steer the ship in any direction, lay down smoke screens.

The same can be done with airplanes with no pilot. Men have now fully achieved the art of fighting at a distance without danger to themselves.

Beginning like the animals, men fought face to face, raining blows on each other's heads. They didn't like that and some clever person invented the spear, and, hurling it, killed an enemy that never saw him. One still wiser invented the bow and arrow, then came the rifle, torpedo, airplane bomb. And now, "robot" battleships and airplanes will pursue the enemy, guided by men at a safe distance. That is close enough to a miracle.

Everybody, from Will Rogers to President Hoover, agrees that Congress ought to "do something for labor." But what can Congress do for the bulk of the 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 idle?

It can build roads, erect buildings, and should undoubtedly do both, where they are needed, and with an eye to future need. Such building would employ comparatively few, possibly some hundreds of thousands in building trades, if the program were very big, many machines and comparatively little labor on road building.

But what about the stenographer out of work, who swallowed poison, dictating into a talking machine a last message for her father, mother and brother to hear?

What can be done for the MILLIONS idle, the white collar men, the NO collar men? Congress should appropriate and spend money, of course. The government has it, or can get it, in spite of its big deficit.

But something better than artificial creation of jobs is needed. Thinking and planning are needed, and an understanding of the depression, its causes, and how to cure it.

Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, widow of the late [illegible] dead. She saw her husband make his courageous fight and win it, never wavering in the last days. She lived to see one of his sons take his father's place in the senate, and another son elected governor of the State of Wisconsin.

When her husband died friends wanted her to run for the Senate, but she preferred to live through her husband and her sons. Every mother can tell you that their success meant greater happiness to the wife and mother than all personal success could have meant.

Somebody left a three-weeks-old baby in Lawrence Rutric's car parked on Mason st., Greenwich, Ct. The child was neatly dressed, and to it was pinned this note, in disguised handwriting: "This baby is a Catholic. Baptize it, please. I have no home for it. See it will be taken care of. Thanks."

There is a sad story back of that note, and it is not hard to guess what it is.

The baby will be baptized and cared for. Anybody adopting it would have, in all probability, a little girl to be proud of.

William the Conqueror and Leonardo da Vinci were both babies of that kind, their mothers not married, although the Duke of Normandy later married Arletta, the tanner's daughter, mother of the boy who became the conqueror.

Leonardo's father never married the peasant mother of his great artist son. The social gap was too great. Instead, he married a woman of the nobility, and Leonardo had the pleasure of supporting his half-brothers and sisters.

Federal Judge Hopkins of Kansas came to New York, sent "Legs" Diamond, bootlegger, to jail for four years, fining him $11,000. Lent Judge Hand's remarking "New York in the way of crime is worse than Chicago."

He also hurt New Yorkers' feelings by saying that, enduring all kinds of crime, they remind him of a dog lying on an ants' nest, too lazy to move when the ants bite him.

The gangsters of New York do all they can to justify the judge's opinion. Yesterday they killed two men near New York's police headquarters, spraying the streets with bullets.

And prohibition enforcement is active. New York's collector of the port, sailing along on his "lawful occasions" in the harbor, attracted the attention of the Coast Guard, who decided that he was a rum runner, and opened fire. The collector says:

GUARD AT PRISON IS ORDERED TRIPLED

Warden Takes Drastic Action to Punish the Leaders in Charlestown Revolt

Ominous quiet settled over Charlestown State Prison today, as guards manned machine guns on the walls and Warden James L. Hogsett dealt punishment to the six men whom he believes were the leaders of the disturbances of the past two days.

The six leaders, already put in solitary confinement, will be kept there from six months to a year, the warden announced.

"We are now ready for any emergency, no matter how extreme it is, but I think we have broken the backbone of this uprising," he said.

Fifty state troopers still remained in readiness at Commonwealth armory today, and new precautions were taken by Capt. William Livingston, commanding the Charlestown division of police.

GUARDS ON ALERT

Guards, in increased numbers, are on duty in all parts of the prison and those manning the machine guns are under orders to keep them trained on strategic points—the exits of the shops and cell blocks, the exercise yard and the heavily barred wall gates.

Special precautions were being taken to guard against incendiarism in the workshops.

Capt. Livingston is holding reserves at the City sq. station at all times and at roll-call this morning he gave orders that no officer on his day off is to leave the city, but instead is to hold himself ready for a call to duty.

Riot guns, tear gas bombs and other police equipment were put in readiness and inspected by the captain before he went to State prison for a conference with Warden James L. Hogsett. At this confe-

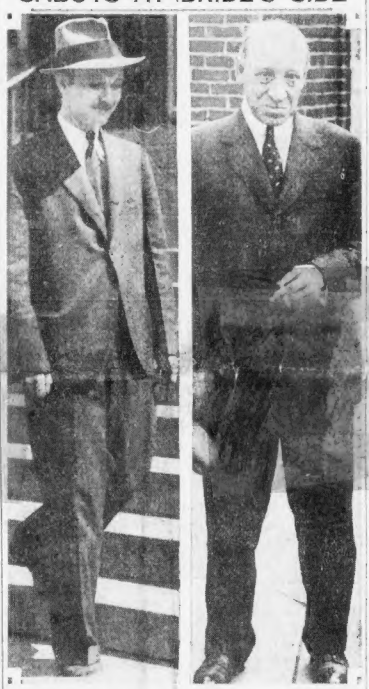
CABOTS AT BRIDE'S SIDE



JOHN BOIT CABOT DR. HUGH CABOT

John Boit Cabot and his father, Dr. Hugh Cabot, noted surgeon, leaving Baker Memorial Hospital today, where Mrs. Grace Dixon Cabot, society bride of the younger, is mysteriously ill of a malady that thus far has baffled diagnosis. (Staff photo.)

CABOT BRIDE'S MALADY A PUZZLE

Father-in-Law, a Noted Surgeon, Is Still Baffled; Denies Rift and Scoffs at Suicide

While Mrs. John Boit Cabot rested more comfortably in Baker Memorial Hospital today, her father-in-law, Dr. Hugh Cabot, famous surgeon, admitted her ailment is still a baffling mystery.

He expressed confidence in her ultimate recovery, however, and branded as ridiculous the theory her illness resulted from an overdose of sleeping [illegible].

"If she had taken all the sleeping tablets in the world," said Dr. Cabot, "she would have been drowsy for a time, but would have recovered in a few hours with no ill effects."

In the hospital, where Mrs. Cabot lingered between life and death yesterday, it was reported her temperature dropped somewhat during the night, and this morning she regained complete consciousness.

In the presence of his son, in the young man's home, 9 Chambers st, West End, Dr. Cabot scoffed at rumors of a marital rift between the young couple.

VERY HAPPY, HE SAYS

They were married in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York, Aug. 7, 1930, but no public announcement was made until February 28 last.

"Any such report is nonsensical, unjustified and without basis," Dr. Cabot declared. "My

Tunney's Wife Leaves Hospital Saturday

Damariscotta, Me., Aug. 20—Mrs. Gene Tunney, wife of the retired heavyweight champion, will leave Lincoln Memorial Hospital here on Saturday, her physician, Dr. W. H. Parsons, announced today. The former Polly Lauder will return to her parents' summer place on John's island, near Christmas cove, where, according to the doctor, she intends to remain until October.

Dr. Parsons reiterated his denial that she was an expectant mother.

Hawks Off for Record and to Meet Mother

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP)—Frank Hawks took off today for Fort Worth, Tex., planning one stop at Evansville, Ind. He hoped to beat his previous time of 5 hours and 30 minutes between the New York and Texas cities.

The primary purpose however, was to meet his mother, who is travelling by air from her home in Hollywood.

Hungry and Broke, 2 Steal to Gratify Wish—Jail!

Jobless, homeless, friendless and penniless, Edward J. Coughlin and Wilfred L. Bonobene met in Boston today and pooled their resources and their fate.

They stole in order that they might get to jail for shelter and food and the friendships jail has to offer.

Down and out and desperate, they met in the West End this morning at daybreak, facing another day as hopeless as the hopeless days that had gone before.

Neither, probably, ever read O. Henry.

They talked about the scarcity of jobs and the dearth of friends and how hard a man can pull his belt when his stomach is empty.

From the steps of a West End chain store they took a bag of cakes. There were no policemen around.

They walked with the bag of cakes to the State House and sat down on the steps to await the opening of the State House. Nobody appeared to arrest them for larceny or for loitering.

When the department of corrections was opened up for the day's business, they were the first on hand.

They marched up to William H. Shields, transportation officer, and handed him the bag of cakes.

"We stole them," one said.

"From a chain store," said the other.

"And we'd like to be sent to the State Farm at Bridgewater," said both.

The farm couldn't be arranged but Judge Charles L. Curr, in municipal court, provided the next best thing—Charles st. jail, after Joy st. station police had booked them for larceny.

Bonobene, who is said to come from Lawrence, was given 15 days and Coughlin, who has lived in Somerset st., West End, was sentenced to 10 days.

Husband Who Lent Wife's 'Suitor' $6000 Wins Over Alimony

Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—John Lamb lent $6000 to a gentleman friend of his divorced wife to help him start in business.

"I gave him the money," he told Judge Joseph David, "because I figured that if he succeeded in business he would marry my wife and I would be free of alimony."

The recipient of the loan did not marry the former Mrs. Lamb and she sued for back alimony.

Informed that $30,000 alimony had been paid, the judge said: "I've heard of Mate, the race-horse, taking twenty grand, but for Ex-Mate to take thirty grand is new."

He ordered Lamb to pay his ex-wife only $500 on her claim and suggested suspension of alimony until the loan was cleared.

1ST WINE BRICK SALE ARREST

The first arrest of a person selling wine bricks in Boston brought a $10 fine today to an Allston man in municipal court.

While the fine was imposed on a technicality, the arrest was seen as the opening of a drive against the grape products that "should be used before they become alcoholic."

Francis M. Burns, 23, of 72 Brighton ave., Allston, was the man arrested and fined.

He was taken by Sergt. Joseph L. Snow of the LaGrange st. station while peddling "California grape blocks," rival to the wine bricks, at Eliot and Stuart sts.

Burns was charged with occupying a street in a restricted area, for the sale of merchandise, to wit, the sale of grape juice bricks.

"More than the arrest was for a technical violation of a city ordinance," Murray Neustadter, sales manager of the Scott Sales System said.

"These blocks are sold strictly under the law and salesmen should not be a subject of riding by police.

"More than 500 men have been given work since the sale of them started.

Burns exhibited a pedlar's license issued by the city when he appeared before Judge Elijah Adlow.

The court ruled that he was selling the blocks in a restricted area and imposed the fine, which Burns paid.

"There is enough stuff being sold on the streets of Boston nowadays without the sale of this junk," the court commented.

5 INDICTED IN $946,000 FRAUD

Five officers of the American Bond & Mortgage Co., of Boston, Chicago and New York, were indicted today by the federal grand jury for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

According to the indictment, the scheme involved a defunct mortgage bond on the $946,000 issue floated in 1928 for Putnam Hall apartments, Brooklyne.

The defendants named today were William J. Moore of Chicago, president; Charles C. Moore and Hayden W. Ward, both of New York, vice-presidents; Harold A. Moore of Chicago, treasurer, and Kenneth W. Moore of Chicago, secretary.

The company, that formerly maintained an office at 43-47 Federal st., is now in the hands of a receiver appointed by the federal court in Chicago.

Receivership papers showed its assets at $2,500,000.

Today's indictment was brought on complaint of Frank P. Wakefield of Wakefield, who purchased a $500 Pelham Hall bond on Aug. 2, 1928.

Wakefield charged and the indictment said the defendants named knew the bond was worthless in view of lack of payments on principal and interest.

Asst.-U. S. Atty. Haven Parker said today that the indictments were the first in the country-wide investigation of the company.

SHOOTING OF 2 HERALDS GANGLAND WAR TO DEATH

LIQUOR BOSSES MARK RIVALS FOR 'SPOT'

Rich Boston Man Leads One Hijackers Recruit Youths From So. Boston

By THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.

Gangland has sounded its overture in the grim program of death arranged by leaders of the underworld.

The opening scene, staged in Roxbury, was, in the parlance of the day, a "flop," because the man marked for death weathered the hail of lead from the shotguns of his would-be assassins.

But the killers will return. The high lords of gangdom have ordered more and better shooting.

Two innocent bystanders were the only known victims of the fusillade. One of them is dying. Police are trying to learn whether a pretty blonde, wife of the intended victim, was wounded in the barrage as she sat in an automobile a few feet from her husband.

Ten hours before the opening gun of the gang war was fired, it learned that the truce which has existed in gangland since the violent demise of Carmello Ruffre had been declared null and void.

VICTIMS MARKED

Orders from the high command were to "rub out" certain parties whose hijacking exploits had made serious inroads in the profits of recognized alcohol bosses.

The slain men, who have drawn recruits from South Boston who are for the most part barely out of their teens but already showing promise in gun-fighting.

Their overlords, waging a war for supremacy in the dope and liquor rackets, are perched safely behind the scenes awaiting the outcome of the death struggle.

One side is headed by a wealthy Boston man who was a racketeer long before the term came into general use. He holds the purse strings, though part of the mob capital has been supplied by at least three prominent Boston men, one of whom holds public office.

The other side is taking orders from a man who formerly had been identified only with rum-running. For years he has ranked with the leading operatives in smuggled liquor, but of late has felt the depression of business.

CHANGES METHODS

He has been caused further embarrassment by the new crop of hi-jackers who were aware that his truckers and hoisters never carried arms. Firearms were always taboo with this man. Whatever trouble confronted him he straightened out very efficiently with his fists.

But the repeated raids on his trucks have forced him to change his methods and he has lined up with the minority mob. Aligned with him on what might be called the board of directors are several notorious figures who have been involved with the federal authorities.

One is ambitious to seize control of the New England dope racket from its present czar. Another recently returned from New York in an attempt to re-establish himself as the owner of a chain of ritzy speak-easies.

A NEW PROBLEM

There is one angle of the South End curtain raiser which is causing the police to ponder on the extent to which the killers will go with their plans. That is the presence in the spot of a drug pedlar who carries on a wholesale trade.

Police are trying to determine whether he also was marked for elimination.

A few days ago he was arrested in a Boston hotel after a quantity of drugs had been found in his possession. He is out on bail and the police want to talk the shooting over with him.

It is the belief of my informant that his arrest has created unrest in the mind of the drug boss of this section. So much unrest, in fact that the boss decided a cold tongue can do an wagging and ordered an execution.

AMERICANS IN CUBA SEIZE ONE PORT

"Foreign Legion" Led by U. S. Citizens in Battle of Gibara

Holguin, Cuba, Aug. 20 (AP)—A bird's eye view of the battle of Gibara, indicating that the rebel forces were planning a strong counter-offensive, was passed on to the Associated Press today by an American College student here.

William Otis Fuller, of Portland, Me., an undergraduate at Harvard, who is running a garage here for the summer, said he stood on the hill of Loma de la Cruz, located between here and Gibara, and saw through binoculars a part of the three day siege of the north coast port, resulting in a tactical victory for the Federalists.

THREE PLANES FALL

Reports reaching him after the battle estimated that 250 government soldiers had been slain, he said, but he could not approximate the number of Insurgent losses. Three of the government's ten airplanes were shot down. Large quantities of arms and ammunition were taken from the rebels.

According to Fuller's account a veritable "Foreign Legion" of about 1000 Americans, French, Japanese and Germans, amplified by native soldiers, landed at Gibara Saturday morning in the German vessel Isle Volmaner and took possession of the city with hardly a struggle. An officer whom he identified as an American was in charge and posted his men at vital points for defense.

HARBOR BOMBARDMENT

A force of about 2000 Cuban soldiers, hailing from Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces, advanced on the town Monday afternoon. Their artillery laid down a heavy fire, airplanes raked the town from above and a cruiser directed a bombardment from the harbor.

The battle raged for 72 hours with much bloodshed on both sides and military maneuvers worthy of organized warfare. The insurgents withdrew in good order about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and intrenched themselves firmly in a railroad tunnel.

Germans Tune Up for Flight to U. S.

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP)—Willy Rody and Christian Johannsen, German fliers, were tuning up a 300-horse power junkers plane at Tempelnof airdrome today to fly to the United States by way of Lisbon, Portugal.

Their plane is similar to that in which Baron von Huenefeld, Hermann Koehl, and Maj. James Fitzmaurice crossed the Atlantic.

IF WAR DEBTS ARE CUT, U. S. MUST LEAD

MacDonald Organ Hints That Hoover Plans to Propose Revision

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—The initiative in revision of war debts and reparations schedules recommended by the Wiggin committee, authoritative British circles believe, must come from the United States.

America, it is contended, is the eventual repository of the war debts payments and most of the reparations, and Europe can do nothing till Washington leads the way.

The British viewpoint remains as it always has been, that Great Britain receives only as much in reparations as she needs to pay her war debts, and, so long as the debt obligations remain she will not take the initiative in urging cancellation or scaling down.

HOOVER PLAN HINTED

It is believed that official and public opinion in the United States may come around to the British conclusion, that the debt situation is retarding business recovery and that eventually there must be some change.

A statement in the Daily Herald, which sometimes speaks for the government, that European diplomats are discussing the possibility of a new Hoover plan for revision of reparations and scaling down of war debts, attracted attention today.

SEES CHANGE IN U. S.

There is a feeling here that public opinion in America is undergoing some change. Four months ago, it is contended, the popularity of Mr. Hoover's moratorium at home would have been doubtful, but when it was announced it was received in America with wide acclaim.

Enormous steel chains will be used to bring the entire room to the surface. If this proved impractical, they will cut a hole in the room and raise the ingots by a special mechanical shovel.

BATTLES AWARD OF STATE WORK

State Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham announce today he would seek an injunction restraining the department of public works from awarding contracts to Massachusetts companies which are not lowest bidders.

Senator Nicholson's statement was based on the action of the executive council yesterday in turning down bids from two out-of-town contractors and awarding the contract to Massachusetts concern which was a higher bidder.

"I am retaining counsel," said Nicholson, "to bring injunction proceedings against the department of public works to prevent it from departing from its long-established policy of awarding contracts for highway construction to the lowest responsible bidder."

He said he was taking the as "an outraged taxpayer who objects to the addition of more than $16,000 to the tax bill of the state by the capricious whim of a body, which, although elected by Republicans, is obviously Democratic in its action and sentiment."

He charged the council not only exceeded its authority, "but has done an evil thing that will eventually react against every industry carried on i nthis state."

LINDY IS HELD DOWN BY FOG

Nemuro, Japan, Aug. 20 (AP)—Foggy weather forced Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to abandon hope of resuming their flight to Nemuro today and they prepared to spend another night afloat off Ketot Island, the "black hole" of the Kurile Archipelago.

Messages to Ochiishi wireless station here from the steamer Shimanshiru Maru said that vessel had towed the Lindberghs' pontooned monoplane to a more sheltered point on the island than that in which it landed yesterday on being forced down a second time in the attempted flight from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were questioned by the captain of the Shimanshiru Maru about the forced landing at Ketoi. Although Japan has rigid laws prohibiting flights over its territory without permission, the significance of the questioning was not revealed.

CUBAN REBELS FLEE; 300 DEAD

Havana, Aug. 20 (AP)—Victorious in the first important battle of the revolution, government troops, airplanes and a gunboat joined forces today to drive the rebels from Northern Oriente province.

The Federals successfully completed a three-day siege of Gibara on the northern coast of Oriente yesterday, official sources said, and surrounded their enemies on the outskirts of the town.

The number of casualties was not announced, but newspapers estimated that 200 to 300 men were killed or wounded.

A million rounds of ammunition, 57 machine guns and 500 rifles were said to have been acquired by the government. The fleeing insurgents took refuge in a railway tunnel and their capture was reported to be imminent. A number of their leaders were believed to have been slain.

Learning that an expeditionary force had landed at Gibara, the government dispatched planes and the gunboat Patria to the scene. The fliers were said to have dropped between 900 and 1000 bombs on the insurgent forces and the Patria bombarded the harbor.

57 Feared Lost in Chinese Shipwreck

London, Aug. 20 (INS)—Fifty-seven persons were feared to have lost their lives today in the wrecking of the steamer Kwong Sang in a typhoon near Foochow, China, according to word received here.

Six British officers and one passenger were among the victims, the remainder being native members of the crew.

10,000 Perish in Lu Ho River Flood

Shanghai, Aug. 20 (AP)—A death toll estimated at 10,000 persons in the Lu Ho river towns of Taochow, Neikiang and Fusin was reported today by Kuo Min, official Nationalist government news agency.

Floods similar to those which have devastated parts of Hupeh, Anhwei, Hunan and Honan provinces swept through Szechwan, the most densely populated province in China.

2 SHOOTING RUM RAIDERS HELD

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP)—Judge Ralph W. Liddy today ordered Clarence Fish and Walter Wenalowsky, customs border patrol inspectors, held for trial on a charge of careless use of firearms in a shooting, July 21, in Lake St. Clair, during which an excursion steamer passenger was wounded.

Arthur Gajeski, the passenger, was shot, allegedly by Fish, while the inspectors were chasing a boat they believed was running liquor.

Judge Liddy in his decision said: "The people have a right to the tranquil enjoyment of the waters at our doors. We must never let life become cheap and enforcement dear."

Three Fall in Plane, One Dead

Bahia Blanca, Argentine, Aug. 20 (AP)—One man was killed, another fatally injured and a third less seriously hurt today when a navy plane plunged into the sea near here.

U. S. JURY TO GRILL ACTRESS IN RICH JAP'S DEATH ROW

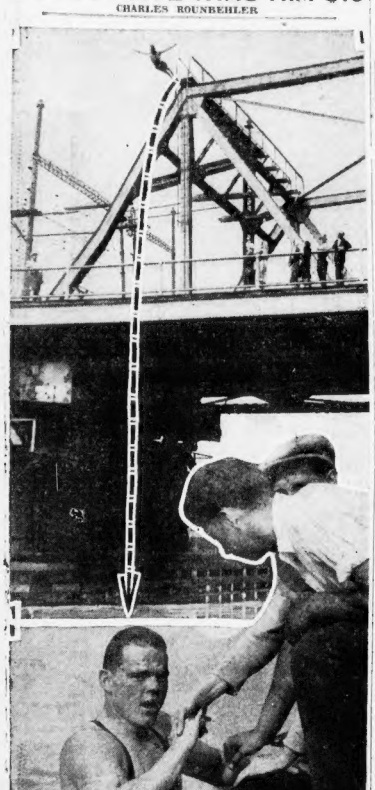
CHARLES ROUNBEHLER



ROBERT EVERETT JOSEPH FANTA

Charles P. Rounbehler, of Beachmont, dived 70 feet from the top of Broadway Bridge in South Boston yesterday, to win a $10 wager. The camera caught Rounbehler as he started his dive. He is seen in the next picture being pulled from the water after his dive and at the bottom you see the boys who lost $5 each. They are Joseph Fanta, who made the bet, and Robert Everett, who took part of the wager. Both hail from South Boston. The water at this point is deep enough to allow such a dive. (Staff photos.)

MISSING JAP'S BLONDE FRIEND IN CUSTODY

Mary Dale, Actress, Admits to U. S. Prosecutor They Had a Row on Ship at Sea

It was entitled: "The Mysterious Disappearance of Hisashi, Fujimura, Millionaire Japanese Importer."

The leading lady: Mrs. Mary Reisner, the former musical comedy actress Mary Dale, who played "Geisha Girl" to the wealthy Japanese during the cruise.

Others in the cast being assembled by federal authorities investigating the incident included Mildred Harris, divorced wife of Charlie Chaplin; a number of Broadway entertainers who contributed to the gay life aboard the vacation liner, and a score of prominent persons of the upper social strata also aboard the vessel.

MORE THAN GOVERNESS

The plot—if there was a plot—will be determined by a federal grand jury next Monday when Mary Dale Reisner, who admitted that she wasn't really the "governess" of the seven-year-old daughter of Fujimura, will be questioned further and the other passengers grilled.

Mrs. Reisner, a pretty platinum-blonde, revealed to authorities that her expenses on the trip had been paid by Fujimura, that he had quarreled with her before his disappearance for attending too many parties aboard the boat, and that she had gone to a midnight-to-dawn party given by Mildred Harris during the hours Fujimura disappeared.

Federal authorities were trying to answer the following questions:

Was there a drunken quarrel aboard the liner?

Did Fujimura engage in an altercation with any Occidental admirer of the lovely actress?

WHAT GIRL SAYS.

Was the Japanese importer murdered at sea?

Did he fall or jump overboard?

Did the married Fujimura, afraid of being seen in the company of Mrs. Reisner, slip ashore unnoticed by customs officials when the liner landed next day?

Mrs. Reisner, according to Asst. U. S. Atty. J. Edwin Lumbard, Jr., made the following statement:

"I was not employed as a governess. Hisashi and I had adjoining cabins. We had a quarrel the last night because he did not want me to go up to the party given by Mildred Harris.

"I left him about 1 a. m. Friday as the liner was nearing New York. I came back at 4 a. m. and went to bed in my cabin. At 6 o'clock the steward woke me and said Hasashi was gone."

Mildred Harris said she had seen Fujimura aboard but "didn't recall much about him."

HOSPITAL FOOD BAD, ORDERLIES SAY

City Councillor Francis E. Kelly, in his cot in the City Hospital, recuperating from an appendicitis operation, today said orderlies in the hospital complain that food served there is so bad many of them are forced to eat outside. Dr. John J. Dowling, hospital head denies the charge, declaring they were unfounded. (Staff photo.)

WOMEN MAKE COPS JUMP

But 'Burglars' Want Only Beer

A woman telephoned Swampscott police at 2 a. m. today.

"Three men are trying to get into a house in Humphrey st., she said.

Police rushed there with riot guns. The trio had fled.

"In a green car," a woman told them. "Here's the license."

Police broadcast the license number and shortly thereafter were called by another woman in another section of the city.

"Three men are trying to get into a house here," she said.

AH, THE GREEN CAR!

They received one more phone call and Lynn police received two to the effect that three men in a green car were attempting to burglarize different houses.

At 4 a. m. Patrolman William Murray sighted the green car in Central sq. He commandeered an auto, pulled his gun and started pursuit. Finally he overhauled it, forced it to the curb and held up the trio.

"We work at the Hotel ——," said the driver.

"We had a ball—a dance—last night," said another.

"We're looking for a glass of beer," said the third.

AND THEN TO BED.

"We've been all over Swampscott and Lynn looking for beer," said the second.

"All the joints were closed. We couldn't get in," said the third.

"Isn't there anywhere a fellow can get a glass of beer at 4 o'clock in the morning?" they chorused.

Patrolman Murray allowed that there wasn't anywhere—that he knew of. Determining their sobriety, he advised them to go back to the hotel to bed. Which apparently, they did, for there were no more phone calls to the police.

KICK ON FOOD IS AIRED BY KELLY

Food given to 85 orderlies in City Hospital is such that one-third of them prefer taking their meals outside, according to City Councillor Francis E. Kelly, who is recovering from an appendicitis operation in the hospital.

Councillor Kelly stated in bed today that he had been the recipient of numerous complaints from orderlies who sought to have conditions remedied, and promised that he would take action to start an investigation upon leaving the hospital.

The orderlies receive $16.50 per week salary and meals and no allowance is made if they fail to eat at the institution.

Stories of low grade food have been brought to him, Kelly said, and convinced him that an investigation should be made.

Dr. John J. Dowling, when told of Kelly's statements, stated that as far as he knew food served to the orderlies was of the best.

Kelly made a scathing attack on the report of the Finance Commission which blamed him for accepting $360 worth of ice cream delivered at Ronan Park during a Fourth of July celebration.

IN 'MILLIONAIRE MURDER'

'ILL,' PRISONER RUNS AWAY

After feigning helplessness in court, Claron C. Fuller, 34, of Danvers, escaped from the Salem police station today and made his getaway.

Fuller had been brought back from from Rochester, Vt., upon his recovery from automobile injuries. He had jumped bail in Salem last June on a larceny charge, police charged.

Today State troopers literally carried him into court after Fuller claimed a relapse and complained of inability to see. He was wearing smoked glasses.

A continuance on an old larceny charge was granted him by Judge Sears, but Fuller was unable to raise $1000 bail and was in custody.

He made his way alone from the guardroom to an ante-room and nimbly climbed out a window to freedom.

State troopers on motorcycles and in dashing autos began a search and the police notified surrounding cities and towns.

Coal Freight Rates Scored as Unfair

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—The method prescribed by the railroads for raising freight rates on Eastern coal provided the general 15 per cent increase is granted was characterized by a Cleveland coal company official today as "indefensible."

H. L. Findlay, vice-president of the Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal Co. of Cleveland, said the special method would work a discrimination in favor of southern producers and railroads.

M'NAMARA FREE IN SHAKEDOWN

Providence, Aug. 20—After being questioned by police and federal officials, Luke McNamara, of this city was released today after it was established that he had no connection with the $2000 shakedown of a West Warwick lace manufacturer by three fake internal revenue department officers.

Two other men, John F. McDonough, former Syracuse University all-America center, and Israel Bernstein alleged bootlegger and bookmaker, were arrested, and held in $10,000 bail each, on a charge of impersonating an internal revenue department officer.

Another man is sought for questioning.

SHOW WRECKED BY MAINE MOB

Milford, Me., Aug. 20 (AP)—An employe of a carnival show was held without bail in jail here today, charged with an assault which precipitated a riot of 300 citizens.

The employe, "Whitey" Corey, was manhandled by an infuriated crowd of Milford men on the carnival lot late last night after he allegedly attacked a Bradley youth with a tent peg.

The boy, Gerald Neddo, who received a fractured wrist and possible fractured jaw, was said by Corey to have attempted entrance to the wrestling tent without payment.

The tent was torn apart by the crowd, stripped to ribbons and burned and several side booths were damaged.

Shouts of "Lynch him!" came from the crowd, officers said, when they fought their way to Corey's side and forcibly took him from the citizens. He was rushed to the jail under strong guard.

Alien Sailors Sent Here to Be Deported

Providence, R. I., Aug. 20 (AP)—Charged with desertion from foreign vessels, unlawful entry into the United States and engaging in coastwise shipping, thus depriving American seamen of unemployment, Kristian Kristensen and Arne Ragen, Norwegians, were arrested here today aboard the American tug Kishena and sent to Boston for deportation.

G. A. R. VETS IN WAR UPON FUNNY PET

Shaver Gets Fright as Frisky Fellow Appears; Women Shocked; Police in Hunt

Bunzo, the small monkey with the big yen for freedom and monkeyshines, continued on the loop in Chelsea and Revere today.

Police and posses continued attempts to capture him and in one instance he outdistanced the soldiery.

The escaped simian apparently spent the night in a tree pulling his whiskers and thinking up pranks to match those of yesterday when he pulled dogs' tails, plucked chickens, stole fruit from pedlars' wagons and mimicked the traffic officer at the Revere Beach boulevard overpass.

GIVES VETS THE LAUGH.

His first appearance of the day was at the Old Soldiers' Home in Chelsea. He swung through a window, snatched a cane from the lap of a startled G. A. R. veteran and leaped out again.

The old soldiers massed for attack outside the home, but were helpless, as Bunzo taunted them from a telegraph pole. He hung the stolen cane on a telegraph wire and vanished into a tree. Police were called, but he was not seen again until he reappeared in Revere.

There, in Beachland st., at the home of F. W. Lane, he popped through a window while Lane was engaged in the morning ritual of removing the whiskers from his chin.

LANE'S WORDS"!!!!!

Lane caught his first glimpse of Bunzo in the mirror while applying lather.

"Here, here, my lad, this will never do. Pull yourself together," he told himself.

Bunzo, rocking on the window sill, threw a summer squash that caught Lane on the back of the neck, routing his fears of an apparition. Mrs. Lane and the children being in the country he then delivered himself in a manner appropriate to the affront and Bunzo departed with his whiskers singed.

The crowd at Revere Beach caught one glimpse of him. Appearing from nowhere in particular he snatched a bathrobe from about the shoulders of a buxom bather seated on the sands and fled screaming, trailing the garment, across the boulevard.

The buxom bather, female, sans bathrobe, pursued. A hot dog man, two Metropolitan cops and 50 bathers joined the chase.

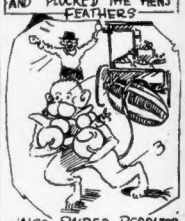
Calais Reports Monkey on a Spud Rampage

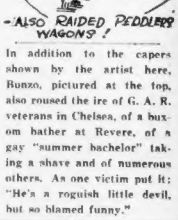
Calais, Me., Aug. 20—A small monkey believed to be Bunzo, escaped pet of Louis Sears of Eastern ave., Chelsea, invaded Jean Peters' potato field in this town today and tore up a half acre of plants.

He Leaves Flynn Wholly Tomatoless

Billerica, Aug. 27—A monkey today stole the only two tomatoes on three dozen vines at the farm of John J. Flynn.

Why He's Hunted





In addition to the capers shown by the artist here, Bunzo, pictured at the top, also roused the ire of G. A. R. veterans in Chelsea, of a buxom bather at Revere, of a gay "summer bachelor" taking a shave and of numerous others. As one victim put it: "He's a roguish little devil, but so blamed funny."

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP)—Dr. John Dill Robertson, candidate for mayor of Chicago in 1927, died today.

WIFE "TRICKS" WAY INTO U. S.

Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—Branding his wife as one of a large group of European adventuresses waiting to trick eligible American visitors of their own nationality into marriage to gain admission to the United States, Jacob Joseph Green, 35, filed in court today a bill for annulment of his marriage in Warsaw, Poland.

The wife, Mrs. Adela Green, also 35, is still in Poland, the bill recites, because he cancelled her passport before returning to America.

Green says he went to Warsaw last year to visit his parents and married Adela to please them. He charges his wife harassed him for money and when he refused after giving her several sums, she said:

"You don't think I married you because I want to be your wife or loved you, do you? My only purpose was to have you take me to the United States and the minute I got there I would leave you and do anything to get to the United States."

The bill also said she had circulated information in the Polish papers that she was no longer married to him and had obtained a divorce with the purpose of "ensnaring others."

Two Bathers Still Missing

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP)—The list of missing bathers reported as having probably been lost during the high tides yesterday was reduced to two today, when one returned home. He is Homer Fry, 16, of Carnegie, Pa.

CROXTON JOINS RELIEF BOARD

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—President Hoover today selected Fred C. Croxton of Columbus, O., as assistant director of the reorganized unemployment relief committee headed by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Gifford was named by Mr. Hoover yesterday to command a new national organization to mobilize and direct unemployment relief next winter with the support of "the whole force of the administration."

The new relief chief today accepted an invitation from the President to spend the week-end at the Rapidan camp and go over the entire unemployment situation.

It was said at the White House that Gifford would co-ordinate, originate and direct unemployment relief for the entire country.

Charlestown Child Injured by Auto

Five-year-old Rita Haggerty of 13 Lincoln st., Charlestown, was struck by an auto in South Edea st. today and taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital. She was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain and multiple cuts. Her name was placed on the danger list.

According to police, the car was operated by Daniel Crowley of Monument sq., Charlestown.

CABOT BRIDE'S ILLNESS STILL BAFFLES

son and his wife are very happy in their married life."

Discussing the symptoms of Mrs Cabot's illness, one of which is fever, he said:

"Poisoning is rarely accompanied by prolonged fever. I am frank to admit we don't know what is the matter with Mrs. Cabot. She has had fever since admission to the hospital and yesterday afternoon it reached 103.8, after climbing steadily since Monday night.

STILL BAFFLED

"Last night, however, it started to decline and was down to 102, and this morning Mrs. Cabot is entirely conscious.

"If she has been attacked by poisoning, there is something in back of it which keeps the fever up and baffles us. I have no doubt whatsoever as to her ultimate recovery.

"The sleeping tablet theory is not being considered. While Mrs. Cabot's brain has been subdued, it is acting rationally."

Dr. Cabot said he was not summoned here because of his daughter-in-law's illness, but happened to be in Braintree, and was reached there by his son.

John Cabot then explained how he learned of his wife's illness.

"On Monday," he said, "I telephoned from Masachusetts Institute of Technology, where I am taking a summer course, that I was waiting for examination marks and would be home for dinner.

FOUND HER UNCONSCIOUS

"Mrs. Cabot replied she was rather glad because she had a slight headache and did not feel like preparing dinner. Arriving home between 8:45 and 9 o'clock I found her lying unconscious across a bed."

Dr. Gail Wilson, the family physician, ordered her to the hospital.

Although she was admitted on Monday, it was not until last night that news of her condition leaked out. Her husband and hospital attaches refused to divulge any information, but Dr. Cabot, now attached to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and her condition had taken a turn for the better.

Early in her illness she displayed symptoms of infantile paralysis, according to Dr. H. Benjamine Ragle, one of the parties to the consultation of doctors attempting to diagnose her case. These symptoms, however, disappeared, leaving the stricken.

TROOPS GUARD JAIL

ence plans for action in case of a riot were carefully gone over.

All State prison guards are on extra duty and this order will remain in effect, Warden Hogsett said, until the inmates show signs of submission to the ordinary discipline.

While these additional preparations to meet violence were being made today, a movement was quietly being started in high official circles to make justice more even handed in the Massachusetts courts.

The first serious threat at the Charlestown institution for years has crystalized the opinions of certain officials and critics of the courts into action, it was learned, from an unimpeachable source.

It was learned that there is dissatisfaction in some quarters with the long sentences meted out by a few judges with the evident intention of "setting an example" where the circumstances of the crime did not call for such severe punishment.

Conferences are to be held and the sentences, especially those handed down by these few judges, are to be considered with the aim of curbing the judges in the use of their discretionary powers.

JUDGE CRITICISED

One of the causes for the trouble at the prison is believed by these critics of the courts to be the uneven sentences which men who have committed comparatively trivial offenses are serving in some cases twice as long as more dangerous criminals.

The recent case of Ralph McClure of Jamestown, N. C., and Robert Gordon of Missouri, has been cited. These men were conditionally pardoned when it was discovered that their sentence of 12 to 15 years each for robbery were the result of a fight with a chipmunk following an argument over a small sum of money.

An arsenal of machine guns rifles, riot shotguns, revolvers and tear gas bombs is ready to subdue the population of the overcrowded prison if the disturbance flames into open rebellion.

"I think the backbone of this uprising is broken," said Warden Hogsett. "I believe the six active members or leaders of the noise-making are now in solitary confinement.

"The first night of this disturbance we had new men on duty who did not know exactly what to do. But I held over 15 of the day guards last night, all experienced men, and when the disturbance occurred they rushed right down the corridors and got hold of the three ringleaders.

"There are a lot of fellows who follow along where others lead. But the six we nabbed are not that kind."

The trouble, according to Dr. A. Warren Stearns, started to brew last Tuesday, ostensibly over the quality of food served to the prison population. He declared, however, that a restless sentiment and a moroseness had been growing in the prison since July 20, when three prisoners went over the wall to liberty. Behind them they left 20 fellow-inmates who had conspired with them to effect a general jail delivery.

Two of the men, Hugh Quigley and Thomas Gilpatrick, were recaptured within a day of their escape. Ernest H. Abbott, the third, is still at large.

ROW AT MEAL TIME

The row started Tuesday after the prisoners had drawn their noonday meal and were locked in their cells to eat. As if at a signal, the furore started, with the inmates shouting and banging on the bars with their tin plates. All the afternoon the tumult raged, and the men were not returned to their workshops.

The roar from the cell block swelled into a crescendo of howling and banging at 7 o'clock Tuesday night. It dropped off until 9 o'clock, when, at "lights out," the uproar commenced anew.

The midday meal yesterday started another storm. The men threw away their food and hammered with their plates on their cell bars.

During the afternoon, when the clamor had died down, they were released in the prison yard for their customary recreation. It was evident that the sullenness had not died out. The inmates clustered together in muttering groups, watching the guards and troopers who looked down at them from the wall.

Again at meal time last night the men roared their anger and despair, and the force of guards stood by their guns. The prisoners howled protests at the meal of corned b f, cabbage and potatoes, and the din drowned the traffic sounds without th walls.

Many possible reasons were advanced for the outburst by Dr. Stearns, who belittled the story that the quality of food was not satisfactory. True, he said, during the past week a shipment of slightly tainted beef was served, but he declared that the fare was ordinarily above that of prisons in quality.

These things and other minor complaints, and not the food, started the disorders, he said, in a statement issued yesterday Dr. Stearns said:

RESENT CROWDING

"We do not believe that the quality of the food has anything to do with it. We realize that the variety is not up to the Copley Plaza standards, but we can't, of course, arrange special diets for individual prisoners who want spaghetti, boiled dinners or dishes familiar only in their native lands.

"This feeling of unrest I attribute to the resentment against long term sentences and overcrowding conditions. There are 873 prisoners here tonight, whereas there are accommodations for only 750.

"The disturbances have been restricted to shouting and pounding on pans with which the prisoners are fed. No hand has been raised in violence since they began yesterday noon.

"We do not intend to interfere with routine unless the situation shows unexpected new developments.

"We have not yet identified the ringleaders. We know that the source is a small gang of discontents, and it is our theory that they are using this method of trying to determine how great a following they would have in the event of a general break for freedom."

Pennsylvania Report Shows 919,000 Jobless

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 20 (AP)—The report of the state unemployment relief committee, upon which Gov. Pinchot based a letter to President Hoover urging the calling of a special session of Congress, was made public today.

It was fro mthis report that the Governor obtained his estimate that 919,000 persons o rapproximately one-fourth of the whole working population of Pennsylvania, are unemployed. A copy of the report was sent to the President.

ELY CALLS ON LEGION TO AID IN RELIEF

Plymouth, Aug. 20—An appeal by Governor Joseph P. Ely for cooperation in effecting economy in government, relief of unemployment and in combatting Communism was made today at the opening of the state convention of the American Legion here.

A note of optimism was injected into the address when Governor Ely told 4000 Legionnaires he expected better times next winter. He added that perhaps he was the only person in the hall who thought so.

The Governor's speech shared the spotlight with a battle for a definite stand on prohibition, started by Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park in a resolve which he introduced.

CHALLENGE TO REDS

"The training of the great war enabled veterans to meet facts as they are in government as in every day life," said Gov. Ely. "The spirit these veterans showed, plays a vital part in the administration of government in Massachusetts. Democratic government with democratic ideals is the best on earth.

"Democracy must meet the challenge of communism. I pledge my allegiance in the preservation of democratic ideals and democratic principles.

"We are about to face a period in the affairs of government when it will be essential to have in mind that economy is the watchword.

"Relief of unemployment by the expenditure of public money is essential. There is a great employment opportunity in public works. My own pet idea is that a government should spend when times are bad and save when times are good.

SEES BUSINESS GAIN

"I am bringing the encouragement of better times next winter, although perhaps I am the only one in the hall who thinks so. Shoe factories in New England are working overtime. One of the largest had in the past six months the best six months in its history.

"The gasoline tax this year has yielded more than last year. At the present time it is yielding $500,000 a month more than last year in the same period. In August we will have collected nearly $1,000,000 more than in August of last year.

"You legionaires know the meaning of preparedness. The same idea I give to you today when I say preparedness in getting read for the problems of the coming winter is most important."

The meeting, which adjourned until tomorrow morning after the address of the governor, was presided over by Richard Paul, state commander.

WELCOME TO VETERANS

Col. William J. Blake, head of the veterans' bureau, paid a tribute to Arthur D. White, commander of Thomas Roberts Post, A. L., of Dorchester, who recently lost his sight as a result of war wounds. He proposed the government award White the Congressional Medal of Honor for "sacrifices he has made in his work for the veterans."

Addresses of welcome were made by Charles F. Lathrop, commander of Plymouth Post, and Jeremiah Lahey, general chairman of the convention committee.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

ANTI-GANGSTER MEETING WINS WIDE SUPPORT

New York, Aug. 20—From every quarter, in and out of the city today came messages of encouragement to the people of New York in their determination to throw off the yoke of the gangsters and racketeers.

The mass meeting of citizens, arranged by the New York American for Central Park, Monday night next, has aroused the interest of the nation. Neighboring cities, gang-infested, have named official representatives to attend the meeting.

MEETINGS LAUDED

Undoubtedly, the success of next Monday's meeting will inspire similar gatherings throughout the nation.

From his summer home in New Hampshire, Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican majority leader of the House of Representatives, wrote:

"I wish to assure the American of my sympathy with the movement to arouse the citizens of my country to a realization of the danger growing out of the power of organized crime. You do well to emphasize the growing menace of this power to our American institutions."

In similar vein came a message from Gen. J. G. Harbord, U. S. A., retired. Gen. Harbord said:

"I want to give my full endorsement to a movement like that being inaugurated by the American which seeks to arouse public opinion against gangsters and racketeers who not only prey upon legitimate trade but menace the lives of respectable and unoffending members of the community."

NOTED SPEAKERS

Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state and chairman of the meeting, will call the gathering to order at 8 p. m. The program of speakers is growing hourly.

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, Gen. Smedley D. Butler of the United States Marine Corps; the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, Detroit; Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney of

Tim the Cabby Bobs Up in Spite of Depression

"Cabby!"

If you shouted it 20 years ago, it might have been "Tim" Murphy who responded. If you shout it today, it's almost sure to be "Tim."

"Cabby," remember; not "taxi."

"Tim" Murphy is one of the two oldest cab drivers in the city, and how long he is going to last at it nobody knows. Every year they count him out and this year they thought sure the depression had hit him.

"But there was "Tim" marching into police headquarters announce his cab was ready for its annual inspection.

"Depression? Rot," said he. "What's that to me? Say, some days I sit on the box all day out on Commonwealth ave. without a fare. But that happened in the Coolidge boom as well as now. Students and a few old people, they're my customers, and I'm still making a living at it, meagre as it is."

New York, and Atty.Gen. John J. Bennett, Jr., of New York are only a few of those who will follow Bainbridge Colby in hurling the defy of decent citizens to gangsters, racketeers and the denizens of the underworld.

'GUNGIRL' CASE PRESENTED TO GRAND JURY

Worcester, Aug. 20—Evidence against Helen Galonek, 25, of Southbridge and Brookline, who was with Robert Mahoney of Dorchester the night he was slain by State police, has been presented to the grand jury in Fitchburg.

This was told Judge Jacob Asher in district court when the girl was due to be arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill State Trooper Walter MacDonnell. Judge Asher postponed the case until Monday.

The girl is in City Hospital recovering from injuries received when the machine in which she and Mahoney were riding crashed into a stone wall.

Atty. William W. Buckley, for the girl, said:

"I am confident she will be acquitted and we welcome a speedy trial.

"She never drove an auto in her life and never had a gun in her hand in her life, though police alleged she steered the car while Mahoney fired and that she is therefore equally guilty with him."

EXPLODING GAS PUMP KILLS 2

Toronto, Aug. 20 (AP)—Two men died of burns today and four other persons were in a serious condition when a gasoline pump into which an automobile crashed, exploded and sprayed passersoy with liquid fire.

The automobile, driven by Edward Little, police constable, collided with the pump in an attempt to avoid striking three pedestrians.

Two of the pedestrians, Herbert Emmerson and Thomas Conroy, both of Toronto, died of burns. The third, William Daly, was seriously burned, but may live, doctors said.

Miss Helen Bugak and John Morrison, walking by at the time of the explosion, were severely burned. Constable Little and his wife escaped injury.

"Alfalfa Bill" Sees $1 Oil Price Victory

Oklahoma City, Aug. 20 (AP)—A prediction that $1 a barrel would be posted for crude oil by tomorrow, with the resultant opening of the Oklahoma City field to those buyers offering the price and taking oil ratably from all wells of the same producing sand was made today by Cicero I. Murray, oil representative of Gov. Murray.

The Governor announced four unnamed companies had agreed to pay $1 he has demanded in return for lifting his martial law shutdown.

CANAL DELAYED BY CANADA

Washington, Aug. 20 (INS)—Responsibility for the delay in resuming negotiations for a St. Lawrence canal treaty with Canada was placed upon the Canadian government today by the State Department.

A formal statement issued by Acting Secretary of State Castle designed to clear any misunderstanding occasioned by the letter of Governor Roosevelt to President Hoover concerning reported "secret negotiations" between the two governments.

Declaring this government had "on numerous occasions" expressed willingness to begin negotiations, Castle added:

"For important reasons of its own, however, the Canadian government has not so far been in a position to undertake these negotiations and this government must naturally await the convenience of the Canadian government."

Castle gave assurances that when the treaty is negotiated, New York State interests will be consulted.

CITY HALL MAY BE CLOSED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak expressed the fear that Chicago's city hall may have to close, due to the city's lack of money.

"Unless the Legislature finds a way to come to the aid of Chicago and Cook County," he said, "we will have of close the City Hall. But we must find ways to maintain the police and fire departments and the teachers."

FACE PAYLESS WEEKS

The mayor's fears were expressed to a delegation of men and women who called seeking his aid in behalf of the unemployed and poverty-stricken residents of Chicago.

The mayor revealed that Gov. L. L. Emmerson's employment commission was planning to appeal to President Hoover to call a special session of Congress to seek ways of meeting the unemployment situation.

Twenty thousand city employes, City Comptroller Szymczak said, would meet continued "payless pay days" after Sept. 1.

CITY HAS NO CASH

"The monthly payroll is $3,000,000," he said.

"We have no money to meet September salaries and there will be no more pay days unless the bankers can see their way clear to purchase more tax anticipation warrants."

Meanwhile Chicago charitable organizations planned to begin a co-operative campaign to obtain $8,800,000 to relieve the needy in the year starting Oct. 1. Samuel Insull, Jr., will direct the drive.

6 HELD IN LAKE WATER RACKET

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP)—A scheme of nine alleged anti-freeze racketeers to sell Lake Michigan to motorists at $5 a gallon was thwarted today by federal authorities who held six of them for arraignment on conspiracy charges.

The sextet was arrested during a raid on their plant in which federal agents found, they said, 6000 one-gallon cans which were perfect duplicates of a type distributed by the makers of a widely known anti-freeze preparation.

These cans, however, contained Lake Michigan water, colored to imitate the legitimate product, agents said.

Street Car Service Changes at Roxbury

Beginning at 7 a. m. today because of repair work at the New Haven bridge at Mt. Vernon st., West Roxbury, the street car service between Forest Hills and Charles River bridge via Centre st. and Belgrade ave., will be operated to the Mt. Vernon st. bridge.

At that point passengers will alight, walk across the bridge and transfer for busses for the remainder of the trip. The work is expected to be completed by Aug. 28, when the service will be resumed over the bridge.

Thugs' Victim

SWIM MEET TO BRING OUT FAST PERFORMERS

Thrills aplenty are promised the hundreds of persons who plan to attend the Boston Evening American's 18th annual girls' swimming races in Charles river basin near Beacon and Charles sts., Back Bay, Saturday afternoon.

The classiest swimmers in New England have sent in their entries for the meet, which will be held regardless of weather conditions. The first event will be run off at 2 p. m. The others will quickly follow. There will be something doing every minute to hold the attention of the spectators. No admission fee will be charged.

According to experts, Betty Chapman of Boston Swimming Association is the favorite in the 880 yards, scratch, event, with Lillian Davis of the same association as second choice. Bernice Taylor of Whitin Community Association is picked for third place.

HARD TO CHOOSE

It looks like a toss-up in the 220 free style handicap, with Elinor Weene, daughter of Mrs. Rose Pitinof Weene of Somerville, Rita McCarthy and Mildred Toomey, all members of Boston Swimming Association as those who will probably gather in the prizes. There are several other good swimmers entered, however, who may upset the "dope."

Claire Walker of Whitin Community Association and Helen Delaney of Boston Swimming Association look like the first and second place winners in the 100 meters handicap.

Gertrude Costello of Boston Swimming Association is picked by many to win first honors in the 10-foot diving competition with Marion Hickox of Whitin Community Association as a close second.

In the 100 yards, free style, scratch, Mildred Toomey and Mary M. Doherty of Boston Swimming Association are considered the logical choices for first and second places, with Catherine Carroll of Worcester Women's Swimming Association as a a likely third.

SPEEDY MERMAIDS

An exciting race is looked for in the 220 yards, free style, for girls of 15 years of age and under. Several speedy mermaids have entered for this event. Experts figure Mary M. Doherty of Boston Swimming Association to take first with Rita McCarthy of the same organization a close second, and Irene Davis, third. Elinor Weene and Betty Chapman may upset these forecasts, however.

In the 100 meters, free style, for girls of 12 years of age and under, Elinor Weene is first choice, Rita Hurlihy of Boston Swimming Association, second, and Margaret Davis, of the same organization, third.

Dorothy McSheehy of Whitin Community Association is picked to win the 100 meters breaststroke for girls of 15 years of age and under, with Dorothy Benninghof of Boston Swimming Association as the likely second place winner, and Judith Fowler of Worcester Boys' Club as third.

Apples Net Growers $58,647 in Bay State

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—Apples were shown by the Farm Board today to have formed 47 per cent of the 1929 business of $3,425,702 of 20 co-operative associations in 12 northeastern States.

West Virginia led in apple sales, accounting for $628,288, followed closely by New York with $564,774 Massachusetts, $58,847; New Hampshire, $51,001; Maine, $40,420, and Connecticut, $1,500.

THE LOVES OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN

King of Laughs and World's Unluckiest Lover

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Charlie Chaplin has been so much a man of affairs that when rumor of his engagement to Pola Negri got about, the film colony refused to take the announcement seriously. Charlie loved and lost so periodically, Hollywood considered the tidbit just gossip.

CHAPTER 16

Charlie and Pola Negri were mutually attracted to each other when they met at the Palais Heinroth in Berlin. It was a case of love at first sight.

It was a strong attraction that drew the couple to each other, an attraction of intelligence, of mutual understanding and of physical beauty.

"I fell in love with my Charlie the night I met him at the Palais Heinroth in Berlin, but it wasn't until a year later, when I saw him again in Hollywood, that I realized it," Pola once commented.

Pola Negri—Countess Appollonia Chalupec Domski. Take your pick of names. They are one and the same person—a fiery, black-haired, wide-eyed woman; a haughty, scornful prima donna of the screen, who made capital of her temperament and made millions on her powers, a spectacular figure.

COURTED BY MANY

Pola Negri, hated by most women, courted by many men, was born in Poland, the daughter of a gypsy. Through a series of romantic episodes, she finally achieved her life's ambition—she came to America to appear in pictures.

And so Pola came to this country. She came amid a blast and fanfare of trumpets; she came on the crest of one of the most expensive publicity waves ever created for a foreign celebrity.

When Pola arrived in Hollywood in September of 1922 she didn't write Charlie. She felt it was his place to call on her—yet he did not.

FINALLY MEET

But finally the two met and Charlie confided the great secret of the moment—he was afraid to see Pola because he knew he would meet his fate.

Of their attraction, Pola once made this commentary:

"I felt the same way. Something told me, 'You will fall in love with Charlie Chaplin,' and so I did not apprise him of my arrival, though, of course, he read of it in the newspapers.

"It was not until some time in October that we actually saw each other. In fact, it was the occasion of the Actors' Fund Pageant that brought us together. I was selected to appear as Cleopatra in the pageant and Charlie was selected to conduct the orchestra.

"Strangely enough, we missed each other at rehearsals—it was not until the actual performance that I saw him wielding his baton. And as I walked toward him I looked into his face.

"It was then that I realized that I had been in love with him for more than a year—without being aware of it. I could hardly wait until the pageant was over to see him. And later he confided to me that he had experienced the same feeling at exactly the same time.

"Of course, after the performance we met. The following day he called at my home and since then except when business or social duties prevented, we have been inseparable.

"We understand each other perfectly and I am sure we will be happy. For my Charlie is not only the dearest boy in the world, but the cleverest. He is a genius. If it were not for my Charlie, life in Hollywood would be unbearable. For after life in a great world capital like Berlin, existence in a small community like Hollywood is very tame. But my Charlie has made my winter in Hollywood the happiest winter in my life."

And so the Chaplin-Negri affair is off to a splendid start.

KNOWN TO MILLIONS

In the six or seven years prior to his meeting with Pola, Charlie had had love affairs galore. But for once he was in love with a woman of the world—a feminine soldier of adventure who, as a young girl, had experienced the horrors of the Polish-Russian revolution of 1905.

Into her soul had crept all the fire and sorrow of tragedy. Charlie recognized her great depth.

No couple that ever fell in love with the possible exception of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks was known to so many millions of people all over the world as these two film favorites—Charlie and Pola.

Their romance became a by-word.

It became an open secret that Pola and Charlie were to tread the aisle in January, 1923. The delay came, it was said, because the decree of divorce secured by Miss Negri in Warsaw from Count Eugene Dombski did not become absolute until Jan. 17.

Charlie's gift to Pola, a diamond bracelet, which the Polish actress wore continually over her left wrist, fanned gossip and rumor.

But January came and went and there was no marriage, although the love affair continued with astounding fervor.

Both Pola and Charlie were making public announcements about their great love for one another.

The couple both agreed that marriage was no bar to self-expression for the husband or the wife.

If women have an inclination to art in any form or other occupations it is their duty to develop them regardless of the fact that their husband also may be working, Pola declared in an interview. And Charlie dittoed the sentiments.

And in the interim, the couple were seen everywhere. Charlie doted on being with his Pola, and Pola repeatedly referred to "my Charlie" as the "greatest artist that ever lived."

In public, their companionship was one of mutual admiration.

For the first time in his life, actually, Charlie was swept off his feet. No woman had ever affected and influenced him as had this dark-eyed continental beauty.

(Further details in the "Negri Chaplin romance will be revealed tomorrow).

Bald-Headed Men Shy of Movie Jobs

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP)—Bald-headed men may be shy, J. C. Richardson, wanting 50 of them for a motion picture of some kind, put the following ad in a newspaper:

"Wanted — Fifty bald-headed men, neat appearing; one day's work; apply 10 a. m."

Nobody responded.

BORZAGE TO DIRECT FILM VERSION OF HARTE'S "SALOMY JANE"

Janet Gaynor First Choice for Lead in New Fox Production

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Aug. 20—The much gossiped-about trouble between Frank Borzage and the Fox company has ended in a new contract for Frank. I knew well after the way "22nd Girl" smashed records at the Roxy Theater in New York Winfield Sheehan would never let Frank leave the Fox studio.

Louella O. Parsons

Not only did Frank get a nice, new, shiny contract, but Edwin Burke was handed one at the same time and told to get busy on "Salomy Jane's Last Kiss." The Fox company owns both the rights to Bret Harte's story and to the play, "Salomy Jane," by Paul Armstrong. Mr. Burke will concoct his own scenario, based on both the play and the story, and, of course, Frank Borzage will direct it.

Janet Gaynor is first choice if she finishes "Heart Free" in time. If she doesn't a coin will be tossed and either Linda Watkins or Helen Mack given a part. Alexander Kirtland, young Theater Guild actor, will have the male lead, and he is said to be what the girls are looking for—young and handsome.

* * *

"Sutter's Gold" is now an established fact. More than a year ago Universal bought the screen rights to this intensely dramatic biography of Johann August Sutter, written by Blaise Cendrars. Then came depression, other pictures, new plans, and "Sutter's Gold" was forgotten. Carl Laemmle, Jr., has revived the idea and the scenario is now being prepared with definite plans to produce it before the end of 1931.

* * *

The career of Benny Ziedmann has been varied and interesting. He started in life as a press agent for Douglas Fairbanks. He made the trip to Europe with the Fairbanks and finally became a sort of assistant producer. Since that time Benny has been at various studios. Now he announces himself as an independent producer.

* * *

Hollywood hasn't yet discovered Charlotte Susa. Europe has, according to Beulah Livingston, who writes that Miss Susa, daughter of a Swiss farmer, has been flitting about Europe by plane to keep screen engagements. She has made a picture for UFA in Berlin.

Snapshots of Hollywood

MARION DAVIES delighting her Hollywood friends with picture postcards of herself at Nauheim. She looks well and promises to be back in town by the middle of September. CLAIRE WINDSOR getting a cordial welcome from Hollywood friends. AL KAUFMAN and SID GRAUMAN discussing affairs of the world over near-beer and sauerkraut at Sam Holland's corner. ROSCOE ARBUCKLE and ADDIE McPHAIL there the same night. James Cagney at the Brown Derby, describing his troubles with Warner Brothers. JACK WHITE, JACK OAKIE, JUNE COLLYER and STUART ERWIN, CLIVE BROOK and VIRGINIA CHERRILL among those glimpsed dining at the Cocoanut Grove. BESS MEREDYTH writing her friends that she has never had such a good time in her life. MIKE CURTIZ, Bess's husband, is the home town hero in Budapest and she is getting plenty of attention. OSCAR STRAUS delighting the guests at George Olsen's by playing "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier." That's all today. See you tomorrow!

COMEDY AND DRAMA ON BOSTON SCREENS

Madge Evans and Lionel Barrymore in "Guilty Hands," at Loew's State tomorrow.

Fifi Dorsay again helps Will Rogers with his hilarious antics in "Young As You Feel," coming to the Olympia and Uptown Saturday.

Tuna Fishers Shown at Work in State Picture

The thrills of giant tuna fishing in the Pacific, as shown in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's short subject, "Fisherman's Paradise," are this week providing entertainment for patrons of Loew's State. The picture takes its viewers on a deep-sea trawler to a spot some 200 miles south of San Diego and there furnishes them with spectacular and humorous entertainment.

Tonight's Program at Brookline Field

The program for tonight's concert on Brookline Field follows:

Movie Lecture on Italy at Y. M. C. A.

"Italy, Charming and Alluring," is the main picture in the illustrated lecture to be given by Robert E. Lavenga at the Huntington ave. branch, Boston Y. M. C. A. tonight.

Ina Claire in Keith Film

Ina Claire, smart comedienne, is to be seen tomorrow at the RKO Keith in "Rebound," which deals with a girl who catches the man she loves on the rebound of his dismissal by another. The vexing and waning of their affections, the trials and triumphs of their life together, are treated in light comedy fashion.

This Donald Ogden Stewart play is the third stage production which Miss Claire has brought to the talking screen.

Exeter Theater

Lester Howard in "Never the Twain Shall Meet," and Joan Bennett in "Hush Money," are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

Californians in Farewell

Breaking records by having his band hold over at the Metropolitan for a fourth week, the farewell one, by the way, Horace Heidt will present his Californians in a new program tomorrow.

Heidt will add the Brox Sisters to the bill. The Californians will play the popular "Bells of St. Mary's."

This will be the band's farewell week.

New Bowdoin Bill

Beginning today the Bowdoin Sq. offers a new program of picture features with seven vaudeville acts. One of the screen hits of the year is Edward G. Robinson in "Smart Money." Another offering is "Their Mad Moment."

BRITONS SPLIT ON TARIFF

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—Opposition to a proposed 10 per cent general tariff as a remedy for the British financial crisis was understood to have been raised by Liberal leaders today in a conference with Prime Minister MacDonald and Conservative leaders.

Liberals and Conservatives left the prime minister's office without announcing any agreement.

Neville Chamberlain and Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Douglas MacLean sat in for the Liberals. Chancellor Philip Snowden was present.

The fact that Snowden and William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, are ardent free-traders led to reports of possible cabinet resignations.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

CANADA BANS GANG BOOKS

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 20 (INS)—Banning from Canada of American books and magazine dealing with gangland activities was revealed today.

The ministry of national revenue besides banning gangster stories has banned various periodicals. Among the periodicals baned are Gangland Stories, Gangster Stories, Gang World Gun Mill Magazine, Startling Detective Adventures and Racketeer Stories.

Also banned are Parisian Life, Spicy Stories, Snappy Stories, Hollywood Nights, Broadway, It, Pep Stories and Lively Stories.

Books that are banned include "Al Capone on the Spot," "A Jew in Love," by Ben Hecht; "The Inside Story of a Master Criminal and His Bloody Career," "The Life of Al Capone in Pictures and Chicago's Gang War," "Millie," "The Wild Part," "Exposed," "Go Marry" and "Pavement Lady."

No Jean Valjeans for U. S.; Court Frees Bread Thief

Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—"We will not repeat the case of Jean Valjean here. Charge dismissed."

These words from the mouth of a sympathetic judge today saved Anton Kwaitowski from jail for attempting to steal six dozen loaves of bread and five dozen buns.

Kwiatowski explained he tried to steal the food because his wife and five children were hungry and he'd had no work for two years. A contribution was taken. Kwiatowski wept as he left the court a free man.

N. G. COLONEL IS FORCED TO QUIT

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell, commander of the New York National Guard, has announced the resignation of Col. Thomas Fairservis, commanding officer of the 106th Infantry (Brooklyn).

Hal Fairservis not handed in his resignation, it was said in military circles, he would have been court-martialled as a result of certain irregularities and neglect of duty.

Chic Turbans Set Milady's Style for Coming Fall

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—The turban is forecast as the predominant style for milady's wear this fall by the Retail Millinery Association of America.

Buyers attending the semi-annual fashion revue find that stiff and draped turbans, directoire beavers and derbies are popular. Most of the advanced millinery models make the coiffure conspicuous.

NAVY YARD GETS $250,000 JOB

Orders for an all-steel electrically-driven harbor tug a ta cost of $250,000 were given the Charlestown navy yard today.

The job will not require additional help at the yard but will prevent a threatened layoff of 100 machinists, welders and fitters, according to Capt. Ross P. Schlabach, in charge of construction.

The new tug will be assigned to the submarine base at New Haven, Ct., when completed about a year hence. It will measure 110 feet in length, with 21-foot beam, a Diesel engine and reversators to power a single propels.

always oven-fresh because

• • • Kellogg's Corn Flakes have a special package different from all others!

• • • A waxtite inside bag perfected and patented for all Kellogg's Cereals.

• • • This inside bag is sealed against odors and contamination.

• • • It brings Kellogg's Corn Flakes oven-fresh and flavor-perfect to your table.

Other foods are wax-wrapped — some inside, others outside. But only Kellogg's have an inside bag that is actually sealed at the bottom as well as the top.

Just another reason why it pays to specify Kellogg's when buying corn flakes. One of the most economical and convenient foods.

Delicious with milk or cream for breakfast; for lunch with fruits or honey; fine for children's suppers or a late snack.

Easy to digest. Always ready to serve. No trouble. No work. With a "wonder" flavor that can't be equaled.

Look for the red-and-green package at your grocer's. It means genuine Kellogg's — the original Corn Flakes. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NAVAL SNAPSHOTS

MONTAUK POINT, L. I., Aug. 20—Caley Bragg presented the Gold Cup to Victor Kleisrath, of the "Hotsy Totsy," on the green lawns of the Montauk Yacht Club.

And where was Caley Bragg's own speed-boat, "Baby Bootlegger"? We failed to see her participating . . .

MAY CHRISTIE

I sat in the window of the Yacht Club, watching the presentation, while genial, gray-haired Commodore Ira Hand explained the various events to me, and the mishaps that occurred to the "also rans."

Tuning an ear to Commodore Eldridge's priceless information on the same occasion,

A Day on the Water

Spending a wonderful day under blue skies, on sparkling blue water, with blue coats abounding,

Skipping from deck to deck across moored yachts and a variety of craft, the better to view that bobbing red buoy which marked the spot where the racers made the violent left turn, skidding their speed-boats with delicious danger . . .!

Those handsome officers who came off the Captain's gig and joined us when finally we parked ourselves on the decks of a rum-chaser . . .

* * *

Not Pirate Craft

And my blood ran cold on looking down into a little cabin, to see a table bearing half a dozen loaded pistols . . .!

My sprightly chats with Commander Ogden . . . Lieutenant-Commanders Daniels . . . Lenke . . . Holton . . . Maher . . . Jack . . . and Anderson.

Who, with several other good-looking and merry young gentlemen in gold braid and dark blue, accompanied Mrs. Howard Curtis James, Mrs. Hopkins Woodworth, the Countess de Nio and myself on the bounding deep all Sunday.

* * *

The cheerful dinner-party given by Mrs. James (which included many naval officers in the crowded dining room of the Montauk Manor, last Saturday night.

And how dem boys did make us dance!

"We are the hardest-working navy in the world," earnestly declared a young-man-on-my-left who had eyes as blue as the ocean.

"Roosevelt and Cleveland built the navy of today," asserted the officer on my right who was sunburned to a deep copper color.

* * *

Houses for Guests

Mr. Jack Bragg, who has such a pretty place down by the water at Montauk, danced indefatigably, Principally with a slim, blonde young woman, who had the most extraordinarily long eyelashes I ever have beholden . . .

Mr. Bragg's property down here includes several luxurious guest houses for his friends . . .

Also a green-roofed "play house" . . . the welkins of which must ofttimes joyously ring!

Although in full naval dress, he sported a white flower in his buttonhole, I noticed, at last Saturday night's dance!

How the ladies beamed on him! And how elegantly he bowed as he acknowledged greetings en passant!

That aristocratic mien, you know . . . it makes a great hit with the wimmin!

* * *

Toes Trodden On

The music was particularly good at Montauk Manor.

You just couldn't keep still when you heard it . . . but oh! how these poor toes of mine were trodden upon . . . !

Not own nimble partners . . . no! . . . they danced dee-vinely! 'Twas just the backwash and the side kicks of those who . . . well, you know the old saying about those who've looked upon the wine when 'tis too red . . .

Mr. William Vanderbilt and Mr. Horace Dodge were among those present in the dining room.

Great yachting lads, both of 'em!

* * *

Who was the opinionative brunette lady in a black and gold dress who loudly asserted that the U. S. S. Omaha would win all the fights . . . that Captain Holmes of the Omaha HAD SAID SO . . . ?

* * *

And who was the beautiful lady to whom Mr. Horace Dodge had promised a kiss and a draught of champagne out of the Gold Cup if and when his boat, "Miss Syndicate III," did her duty . . . ?

BENEFIT FASHION SHOW AT MAGNOLIA TO AID NEEDY CRIPPLED

Post-Debs to Assist as Models

On Monday, the 24th, a group of post debutantes will aid the Christopher Shop, an organization run for the benefit of the people who are physically disabled and cannot work, by modelling in a fashion show. The affair is to be given at Del Monte's in Magnolia, with Mrs. Ernst M. Parsons, a member of the shop's committee in charge, assisted by Miss Virginia Taylor and Miss Barbara Procter. Miss Taylor is an authority on the modelling, as she is one of the more ambitious girls and has a "job" at Ruby's fashionable gown shop. Miss Crosby's, another exclusive dress shop, is providing the costumes to be modelled, including sportswear, evening gowns, formal and informal ensembles in the newest fall styles, with all their matching accessories.

The girls who will take the part of mannekins are: The Misses Katherine Olney, Isabell Potter, Agnes Boardman, Edith Wolcott, Margaret Ives, Rosamond Holton, Virginia Cowles, Charlotte Sherborn, Constance Percival and Mrs. Joseph Woods (Betty Barrell).

A cabaret also will be part of the program in which, as usual, Miss Sally Wambolt is to star. Miss Wambolt, who so graciously gives much of her time and talent for benefit performances, will sing some of her own compositions as well as some of the current popular songs, and will also dance. Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., and Miss Susan Wigglesworth will also sing in harmony. Ruby Newman, the indefatigable "jazz man," will provide the music. We'll see you—!

Hospital Benefit

The Benjamin Stickney Cable Memorial Hospital is again receiving the proceeds of an "open-to-the-public" affair in its benefit, when today, Mr. Arthur Shurcliff lectures on landscape gardening in the Baker House at Ipswich, and the ladies of that fashionable summer place, as well as Hamilton and Topsfield, open their exceptionally beautiful gardens to the public view.

Didn't Mind Rain

Another handsome girl who didn't mind Saturday's rain in the least was Mrs. Hopkins Woodworth.

I had a little chat with Mr. John Wanamaker, Jr., at the Surf Club.

And bright as a bee was Commodore Kenneth Scoville, too, as we fox-trotted merrily together.

I saw Mr. and Mrs. John M. L. Rutherfurd at the races. She was Maude Hughes before her marriage. Both she and her husband are ardent yachting devotees.

Parisian Hats No Fad for Deauville

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Deauville, Aug. 20—The stylish Paris fashion in hats may be all right for the capital, but it certainly is no hit here. With a strong sea wind blowing now and again Milady is forced either to leave the promenade or keep her head tilted toward the sea.

An example was offered when a fashionably dressed pretty Parisienne in a white wash silk dress, with a small perierine cape in emerald crepe de chine, and a small straw howler with a long green and white ostrich feather, was greatly aggravated by the feather which twirled in all directions except the one designed for it.

Among those noted here was Mrs. Nathan Ottinger, of New York, wearing a white crepe de chine gown with a short crepe de chine jacket of geranium red, trimmed with groups of tucks. The sleeves were in leg o' mutton shape, entirely composed of diagonal tucks.

Miss Elsa Maxwell, who is in Ralph Beaver Strassburger's house party at La Ferme du Coteau, wore her usual severely tailored coat and skirt of gray flannel, with a small Panama hat with a red band.

Mrs. Berry Wall, here with her husband and his prize chow, wore a blue crepe de chine dress with a hem length beige coat and small beige felt hat.

Late that same afternoon, around cocktail time, sauntering between the bar and the gaming room was the Maharanee of Indore, formerly Nancy Miller, of Seattle, looking particularly well dressed in coat and skirt of black crepe de chine with a lime green satin blouse, the decolletee of which was pinned with a large diamond brooch. The hat was of fine black picot straw trimmed in satin of the same color as the blouse.

Madame Mathieu Godchaux, nee Edith Wormser of New York, was dressed in red crepe de chine

British Mayor Coming Here

Lord Mayor Frank Tilt of Manchester, Eng., Lady Mayoress Lady Alice Maclennan Tilt and Town Clerk Edwin Warbreck Howell, who will be the guests of the city of Manchester, N. H., in October, will visit Boston during their stay in Massachusetts.

Sir Harry Gloucester Armstrong, former British consul-general at New York advised Mayor Curley of the approaching visit. They will be the guests of the city while in Boston.

British Give Up Hope For Aid From Gandhi

Bombay, India, Aug 20 (AP)—All hope that Mahatma Gandhi might help England frame a new constitution for India seemed to have vanished today with a blunt statement by Gandhi at Ahmedabad that he is unrepentant for publishing his indictment against the Government.

Similarly, Viceroy Willingdon in Calcutta, decided suddenly to abandon his fortnight tour of India and return to Simla to deal with Gandhi's challenge. He was represented as feeling Gandhi's presence at the second round table conference is impossible.

Petain Will Visit Newport on U. S. Trip

Paris, Aug. 20 (AP)—The voyage of Marshal Petain to the sesquicentennial of the Battle of Yorktown in October will be given the importance of an official mission by the French government.

Petain will be accompanied by naval and military staffs, and also visit Newport, R. I., where the French army had headquarters during the Revolutionary War, and where the French dead of the Revolution were buried.

Black Furs Are Chic All Day

By ANN ARDEN

BLACK FUR coats go shopping, go out to luncheon, bridge or tea, they take in football games and travel by land or sea or air. We're liable to see them almost anywhere all day long, except perhaps outbiking in the country.

* * *

A MOST important thing is the color of a fur coat this fall. It has to match or go with the accessories, and it's no wonder that so many women are indulging themselves with more than one. How well a black coat sets off these bright wool dresses so much in vogue with striking contrasts! And, of course, it is very smart with the black dress that has white or perhaps colored trimmings.

* * *

CONTRASTS in furs give charm and individuality, and since light with dark contrast has been so generally accepted, naturally its vogue is extended to include furs. White with black caracul; black with gray Persian lamb; Hudson seal with cocoa-dyed ermine are some of the contrasts noted.

* * *

THE COSTUME pictured has a well-bred air. The coat is a model from Bruyere in black kid, and might easily masquerade as the more luxurious broadtail. It has a straight, slim line, and belt of the fur, run through black ring buckle. The draped scarf is edged in white kid, and may be variously and most becomingly adjusted. The sleeves widen at the wrists, and are tacked in white kid.

* * *

THE MARIA GUY hat is of green felt, the brim upturned on one side, slant at left side. A pom-pom of feathers in bright red, white and green is run through center front of crown, accenting the brim's low dip.

* * *

THE BAG is of black grain leather, with white kid trim; and the gloves white kid stitched in black.

* * *

A most effective ensemble.

DISARMING IS WARMLY ARGUED BY BELIEVER

—By Gilbert Seldes—

ACCEPTING THE COMPLIMENTS in the following letter as a necessary evil, I offer it because it says clearly and with an emotion I recognize as genuine, what many people think on a subject of the first importance. It comes from Sam War[illegible] who disagrees with my statement that talk of peace and disarmament may be a serious encouragement to war. He writes:

GILBERT SELDES

"Your article on 'Champagne Pledges of Peace' was one that contained an immense amount of truth in a mighty concentrated little pellet. You are quite right about the betrayal of the peace hopes of the world by the Socialist parties of France and Germany during 1914. And with keen and searching analysis you tear many fallacies to pieces in your remaining paragraphs. But there is a note of hopelessness and pessimism and complete helplessness and surrender in the balance of your article which cannot be accepted by anyone who places high faith in the future destiny of the world.

* * *

Pressure From Below

"Your agreement with Frank H. Simonds' idea that disarmament might encourage war does not take into consideration the fact that disarmament partial or complete, would not come into existence without pressure on the part of the masses upon their officials.

"Armament has been, and is today the result of a policy developed and inherited by the governing and the military powers. Their propaganda has hitherto been able to keep the public sold on the necessity of armament.

"Should disarmament come into being, it would be only because they have had to yield to a superior public force, enlightened and determined on the abolition of war as an instrument for the settlement of international disputes.

"As long as you have a chauvinistic public you will have chauvinism. Abolish chauvinism in the minds of the public and militarism will no longer be accepted. It becomes apparent, then, that disarmament is only possible with a public which is peace-conscious. A peace-conscious public will not permit a resort to arms.

"There is, perhaps, no more dangerous period in the history of nations than that which now confronts the world. With millions out of employment the world over, with markets feverishly contested for, with governments under the terrific strain of maintaining their hold and their prestige in their respective peoples, war does beckon as a way out to many an administration. But, while great financial and commercial powers have hitherto supported war as a means of aggrandizement and expansion, these same powers are not only loathe to embark on war, they actively oppose it. For they have seen the fearful price to be paid for suicidal conflict. They have seen empires go down, industries confiscated, bonds blown to hell and capital taxed almost if not completely out of existence.

Capital Against War

"The hope of the great industrial and financial leaders of the world today and in the future will lie in methods assuring peace, and not war. The close tie that once existed between expanding capital and militarism has been effectively destroyed, except in such minor instances as those where munition manufacturers require an outlet.

"And the press, its own interests at stake, is watching these gentlemen and their enterprises so closely that I doubt they would attempt overt acts which, if launched, would swiftly end in legislation making their industries national enterprises under control of the governments of the world.

"There must be peace. The future of civilization depends upon it. There must be co-ordination of effort by every organization of importance in the world to assure that peace. There must be a vast and efficient educational drive throughout the world to assure a peace-consciousness. It must be aimed at disarmament, complete, unqualified throughout the world.

"The professional politicians will not solve these problems. They are too entangled, too blinded by prejudices and blind, short-sighted loyalties. The publishers and editors of the world should call an immediate peace conference.

"The vast fraternal organizations of the world should move to a similar action; religious leaders of the world; great women's organizations; commercial and industrial and financial leaders.

"Disarmament will follow a world peace-consciousness as inevitably as the day follows the night. It will be effective."

I have nothing to say in rebuttal, except that I wish I could believe the last four words.

Other Men's Thoughts

From "Journal of Things," by Arnold Bennett; Doubleday, Doran.

"A rich friend of mine gave a party to a number of fellow-clubmen. Not very late in the evening two facts became known. First, that the supply of whiskey had run out. Second, that the members of the hired orchestra were all drunk.

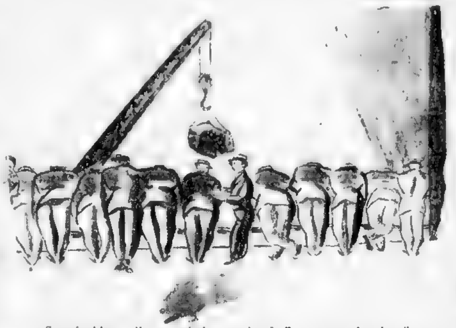
"So the party came to an end. Why it should have come to an end I could not understand. For neither whiskey nor music was really necessary to the continuation of a party of men who undoubtedly had considerable intellectual resources.

"Nevertheless, the party did come to an end, and I went home."

Silence

Grim silence with a heavy hand
 Would muffle all the nation
A hush would fall upon the land
 And stifle conversation.
A sudden stillness, dull and bleak
 Would grip the population
If everybody ceased to speak
 About that operation.

George E. Phair.



Say, buddy, will you mind my place? I wanna grab a bite"

Standardized

—By Chas. H. Towne—

NOWADAYS WE ARE prone to talk a great deal about "standardization." And we seem to forget that the true-to-form process has always been going on everywhere.

The covers on our magazines are criticized for their sameness, but the truth is that readers become used to a formula, and demand it. But before your time and mine, things were ever thus.

For instance, in cleaning up my desk the other night I happened to find an old copy of Harper's Magazine which some friend had given me. It was dated November, 1889, and there was the stately cover which for many decades was used without deviation: the boy blowing bubbles seated on the top of the world, and two others on either side scattering flowers from the ascending columns, the books piled up, the artist's palette, the scrolls, and the solid base with its stars.

* * *

Amused, and so little gratified that anything could last so long in our country of incessant change, I dipped into the contents. There they were—the old names, clinging like ivy over the august portals of this precinct of respectability, not to be torn from their rooted places. Some of those names are now forgotten, but others are still remembered.

Lafcadio Hearn was writing one of his charming travel essays; Laurence Hutton was discussing a century of Hamlet; a serial by Charles Dudley Warner was being brought to a conclusion—"A Little Journey in the World," it was called. Charles Eliot Norton was telling of the building of the Cathedral at Chartres. George William Curtis was sitting in the Editor's Easy Chair, whilst William Dean Howells had gone into the Editor's Study to brood on the decline of the English novel since the era of Jane Austen.

Clinton Scollard (how young he must have been then, and how happy to get into this high company) was to be snatched out of the editor's drawer with a light lyric in his hand; and Thomas A. Janvier was telling everyone of the Mexican army and its wild ways. There were short stories by Lucy C. Lillie and Thomas W. Knox, and a poem by a lady with the strange name of Zadel Barnes Gustafson; and a sonnet by no one less than William Wordsworth.

* * *

Now that was a roster of which any editor might have been proud in those unclouded days. There was a certain serenity in their point of view. There was not a cynic among them. They were a strong battalion carrying above their heads the banner of artistic integrity, marching forward on their conquest, moving ever nearer to the fortress of Culture.

And, as I read their quiet, temperate words, I found myself rocked into patience, breathing again the pleasant air that brooded over this period of complete tranquility. It was like walking into an old garden where phlox and mignonette and hollyhocks and lemon verbena bloomed under quiet skies, "a land where it seemed always afternoon," and where the idle hours ran gladly.

And as this issue of the magazine happened to end a volume there was given, as was the custom in those days, a list of the contents of the numbers which had preceded it for six long, leisurely months, and there again I found the names of these same writers as though they were of one big, exclusive family, repeating their gentle conversation in candle-lit rooms when the tea was brought in and the fire lighted on the hearth.

They were like a litany of respectability, even aristocracy, but I wondered if they had not built too high a wall around themselves, and thereby shut out no little of the best of life, and a great deal of the pain that must have been in the world in those too placid days.

Sin in Underwear

—By Rebecca West—

LONDON.—I read in a newspaper that one Mr. Gott, who holds some awe-inspiring job in the Congregational Union, had protested against raising money by selling women's underclothing at Congregationalist bazaars.

Rebecca West

I carried through the day the impression that he had done so because he thought this was wrong on account of the poor quality of the underclothing.

I went through the day therefore, admiring Mr. Gott. But by evening he meant nothing to me again, for an amplified report revealed that he had objected to this underclothing because of its sinful luxury.

The intimate garments of female Gotts, we must sadly suppose, are made out of linoleum.

But I might have known it. For people like Mr. Gott, who get on their hind legs and say they are shocked, are always on the side of thick underclothing. And this is odd, because people who are on the side of thin underclothing are just as shocked.

I feel, if I force myself to think of it, extremely shocked at the thought of anybody wearing these calico garments. I am not being the fastidious woman of the advertisements, the dear wincing thing. I mean that the thought cuts at the basis of everything that I believe to stand for an ordered and decent life.

* * *

Undies Lead to Hate

Bulky clothes are unhealthy. Ill health is repulsive. That is the primary case against them; but secondary and deeper is their offense against morality. My experience of life tells me that the mass of people become either ineffectual or truculent or envenomed if they do not form happy relationships with members of the opposite sex.

Saints can rise above celibacy, but the average sinner converts it to an acidulated form of sin. It is obvious that people who wear coarse and ugly materials next to their skins have a carelessness about bodily things which will lead to lowered vitality, lack of sexual attraction, and clumsiness in response.

These calico garments, therefore, beyond a shadow of doubt, mean so much more maladjustment and hatred in the world.

Now, the point is that nearly everybody able to read and write and born less than 45 years ago thinks this way.

We know that a young girl who goes to the beach dressed like Gandhi may or may not use her healthy body to get harmony and continuity out of life; but we are certain that the young girl who swaddles her body in calico is cutting out of her existence one of the main factors of the good life.

* * *

A Too-Many Clothes Law

But do we ever do anything about it? Does the most enlightened township in the world prosecute women for walking in the streets in too many clothes, as lots of towns prosecute women for wearing too few?

Of course it never happens. And likewise we take no action though we know that "Sonny Boy" is really much more demoralizing than any Rabelaisian lyric for which college boys have ever got into trouble.

For after one has called some natural object or function by a coarse and facetious name for some time either one gets tired of doing so or the word loses all its humorous significance and becomes a matter-of-fact name, and one is back at the beginning again.

The fact is that getting past certain prejudices takes away one's power to act on one's abandonment of them. Once one stops getting bothered about the body as a body, apart from particular ones, there is no getting excited about the business.

One is liberated from that preoccupation, one goes on and thinks about something else. So it is about naughty words. If one loses one's sense of their magical importance, and finds that they are merely explosions and of no particular importance, one cannot go back and argue with people who still get black in the face over them. It does not seem worth while.

Other Men's Ideas

The Tay Bridge Disaster, from "Hatter's Castle," by A. J. Cronin: Little Brown.

"Abruptly, when the whole train lay enwrapped within the iron lamellae of the middle link of the bridge, the wind elevated itself with a culminating exultant roar to the orgasm of its power and passion.

"The bridge broke. Steel girders snapped like twigs, cement crumbled like sand, iron pillars bent like willow wands.

"The middle span melted like wax. Its wreckage clung around the tortured train, which gyrated madly for an instant in space. Then the train with incredible speed, curving like a rocket, arched the darkness in a glittering parabola of light and plunged soundlessly into the black hell of water below, where, like a rocket, it was instantly extinguished—forever obliterated."

MARY E. CURLEY JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL READY TO OPEN

Mary E. Curley junior high school, located at Centre st. and Pershing rd., Jamaica Plain, will be completed five months ahead of schedule and ready for occupancy in September. Experts praise Matthew Cummings, genial contractor, and associate contractors for unparalleled feat in this construction of Hub's newest school.

Boston's Newest School Is Finished Ahead of Time

The new Mary E. Curley school [illegible] Centre st. [illegible] of Pershing rd., Jamaica Plain, will be finished in time for the opening of [illegible] school [illegible] [illegible] work to be completed and will be ready for the city to accept for occupancy at that time. The building when accepted by the city will show a considerable saving of the amount originally appropriated for the construction cost and equipment of the school.

Matthew Cummings

To memorialize the distinguished wife of His Honor Mayor James M. Curley, for whom the school is named, a bust is prominently placed in the main lobby of the Center st. entrance to the building. This bust, which is a gift of the mayor to the school, is of enduring white marble and is a speaking likeness of the late Mrs. Curley. It was carved by the well-known sculptor, C. S. Paolo, who has modelled busts of ex-President Coolidge, Pope Pius XI and Cardinal O'Connell.

H SHAPE BUILDING

The building as designed by McLaughlin and Burr, architects, 88 Tremont st., Boston, and constructed under supervision of Matthew Cummings is H shape in plan giving the advantage of direct outside light and best exposure to every room. A large assembly hall with a seating capacity of 1000 and large drill hall occupy the central portion of the building fronting on Pershing rd. Class rooms are placed so as to obtain the maximum amount of sunlight and air.

The building in design strikes a new note for school buildings, following the modernistic trend with buff face brick and limestone trimmings. The construction throughout is fireproof with all stairways enclosed in brick walls with fire doors at exits.

MARBLE LOBBY WALLS

The walls of the main entrance lobby where the memorial is placed are of special design in marble which extends from floor to ceiling. The auditorium has a sloping floor with [illegible] and [illegible] equipped with [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] stage [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] talking moving pictures. The ceiling has a special [illegible] treatment scientifically [illegible] for sound absorption to [illegible] all sound reverberations.

The drill hall has [illegible] arrangement for two [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pressed brick from floor to ceiling.

40 CLASS ROOMS

The class rooms, 40 in number, [illegible] the first and second [illegible] of the building. [illegible] class rooms are of standard size [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] equipped with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] each room and under [illegible] of [illegible].

A special feature [illegible] is the public address system [illegible] connecting [illegible] in the building with the principal's office [illegible] [illegible]. This system makes [illegible] for the principal to talk [illegible] of the pupils throughout the building at the same time.

The mechanical equipment throughout has been carefully designed for maximum efficiency and minimum maintenance. All plumbing work is open type.

The heating [illegible] system [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] known as a split system [illegible] [illegible] supplies [illegible] to the [illegible] and [illegible] direct radiation. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sessions. The electrical [illegible] [illegible] complete [illegible] [illegible] operated clock [illegible] [illegible] telephones in each [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] located [illegible] parts of the building [illegible] are also provided for vacuum cleaning.

Among the list of contractors and dealers who were responsible for the success of the Mary E. Curley school are the following:

Matthew J. Cummings, general contractor.
McLaughlin & Burr, architects.
Superior Blackboard Service Co., blackboards.
Alexander Thomson Co., limestone.
W. J. Grosvenor Co., metal trim.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally

(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)

present in every tobacco leaf

The finest tobacco quality plus throat protection.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for trees, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

THIS IS LIFE

DENIS M'CARTHY POEMS OF THE SORT THAT WILL ALWAYS LIVE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

IT IS ONLY TWO MONTHS since I saw Denis McCarthy at an outdoor party of Boston men, who occasionally get together for an old-fashioned feast of reason and flow of soul in the traditional Boston manner. He bore his 60 years more youthfully and gallantly than many a younger man there. As always on those occasions he and his old friend Nixon Waterman, kept up their pretense of friendly rivalry as to their respective merits as poets, and the constant flow of wit and repartee between these two fine veterans of literature would have warmed your heart to hear.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Waterman is the wit, the manufacturer of sparkling pyrotechnics in verse, the epigrammatist, one of the few left who know what vers de societe means. McCarthy was—still is, for his poetry goes marching on—the poet of the simple hearts and the deep emotions of plain folk. For all his sweetness and laughter he had a fighting Irish face. At first sight his brows beetled over an aggressive nose and his eyes were stern and sincere. For many of his poems were challengingly patriotic and religious.

* * *

Poetry in His Soul

But when he spoke to you, you felt not merely the patriot and the fighter for the ideal, but the romantic poet of the old school, the school of the sons of Thomas Moore, perhaps the sweetest singer of them all in a romantic day when sweet singers were more esteemed than now. No one who ever heard him recite his own song, "Oh, 'Tis Sweet in Tipperary in the Springtime," the song of the land and the county where he was born, could doubt for a moment that he was of the right poetic tradition that gave us "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls."

He came to America at the age of 15, poor, unknown and with little education. Like so many of the older generation, who never felt the mechanized lock-step of our public schooling, he educated himself to good purpose. Men of the finest education knew, somehow, that he had beaten them at their own game, and delighted to honor him. His doctor's degree came from Boston College, the Phi Beta Kappa of Tufts College, that jealously exclusive fraternity of scholars, made him an honorary member; so did the Boston School Principals' Association. He was editorial writer for Catholic magazines and for the public press. He was a member of the editorial staff of a great publishing house of Boston. He was the official poet of the city of Boston at its sesquicentennial celebration of the Revolutionary War. Best of all, his poems are to be found in children's school books everywhere.

* * *

Poetry That Will Live

For that last is the final test of the lyric poet. In an inquiry of wide scope conducted some years ago among school children, it was discovered that the two best-known poems in American literature are Longfellow's "A Psalm of Life" and Sam Walter Foss' homely homily in verse, "The House by the Side of the Road." Future generations will perhaps remember some of Dr. McCarthy's poems in the same way. For they are the sort of poem that one learns, literally "by heart," that is, with the whole heart. Such poems are "'Tis Sweet in Tipperary" and "The Land Where Hate Should Die," "The Song of the Foreign Born" and "America First."

America has always been rich in these singers of poems for the heart, where simple musical phrasing is wedded to sentiments which are not profound or original, but deep-seated and universal. Not great poetry, perhaps, by the tests of style and cultural richness and intellectual power; but infinitely more beloved than all but a few of the greatest poems.

Longfellow and Whittier wrote poems like that. And Bret Harte and Eugene Field and James Whitcomb Riley—the best known of them all—and Clinton Scollard and Foss. Edgar Guest is a bit too elementary and pedestrian and newspaperish to belong to the real crowd. But Denis McCarthy, I think, does belong. For one who knows and understands a poem by Whitman or Lanier or Emily Dickinson or William Vaughn Moody or Edwin Arlington Robinson, there are a thousand who know by heart the plain songs that find themselves immortalized in the school books.

There is no doubt that our poetry of today is growing intellectualized. That is why, perhaps, only one of our recognized "modern poets" commands something of the love these elder poets received, and that is Robert Frost. The others are too cerebral or too stylized to touch the heart. For the lyric was first sung to music and no lyric is worth the remembering that hasn't a tune in it somewhere.

Recently I have been delving through the records and the works of the literary folk of Boston during the years from 1880 to the present, in preparation for a sketch to be published in the Tercentenary Committee's "Memorial History of Boston." Among them all there is one figure beside whom Denis McCarthy can stand shoulder to shoulder in literary history, the well beloved John Boyle O'Reilly, whom young McCarthy on his first visit to Boston wished to visit, but was too modest to dare approach.

John Boyle O'Reilly, long editor of the Pilot, was a political exile from Ireland. Sentenced to transportation to Australia he came to America and became a loyal American. To the day of his death he was a vigorous champion of freedom and democracy, virtues more prevalent in the America of a generation ago than today. He stood for a fundamental liberty in matters political, religious and social. His tolerance was a fighting tolerance. His poems, though criticised at times for their lack of polish, were fervent and impassioned, as, indeed, were his eloquent articles and editorials. He counted men of all bloods and classes and creeds as his personal friends. His statue stands at the entrance to the Fenway.

Denis McCarthy was not unlike the O'Reilly. He held the same convictions and ideals and he expressed them in poems of human appeal, of beauty and of power. In a generation far less sure of its fundamentals than was O'Reilly's generation, he held fast to the same creeds. Many of his poems will be cherished in the hearts and memories of our people. I doubt whether any true poet would desire more than that.

HOW TO EAT AND GROW THIN!

EXPERT TELLS METHODS TO CUT WEIGHT

Don't Try to Lose Weight Too Fast, Warns New York Health Chief

By PAUL CAPRON, Jr.

Here is the first of the healthful reducing diets prepared by Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, health commissioner of New York City.

But be sure and heed the commissioner's warnings with regard to the dangers of unwise reducing. There are the principles to keep in mind when you are reducing.

1. Don't try to take off more than a quarter of a pound a day. It's not safe.

2. Don't try any tricky method of reducing, no matter how good it seems. The only safe way to reduce is to eat less fat-producing food and exercise more.

SEE A PHYSICIAN.

3. Fat may be due to gland trouble, so it is wise to be examined by a physician before trying to reduce.

4. Every diet for any purpose whatever should include a quart of fresh milk daily, at least two helpings of leafy vegetables, preferably uncooked, and some fruit, preferably citrus fruit.

Dr. Wynne has included a table of normal weights for men and women to be used as a guide in connection with his diet. Below it you will notice a table of numbers which will enable you to fit the diet to your own particular needs. But don't, on any account, violate principle No. 4.

YOUR PROPER WEIGHT.

Here is the table of normal weights and the exercise key numbers:

WOMEN

Height Feet	Inches	Weight Pounds
4	10	116
4	11	118
5	—	120
5	1	122
5	2	124
5	3	127
5	4	130
5	5	134
5	6	138
5	7	142
5	8	146
5	9	150
5	10	154

MEN

Height Feet	Inches	Weight Pounds
5	3	133
5	4	136
5	5	140
5	6	144
5	7	148
5	8	152
5	9	156
5	10	161
5	11	166
6	—	172
6	1	178
6	2	184
6	3	190

15 if you take no exercise.
17 if you take light exercise.
19 if you take moderate exercise.
22 if you do muscular labor.
25 if you do severe labor.

You then have the number of calories for your daily food requirements if you were not overweight.

From this number subtract 1000 calories—and you have your proper reducing diet. A safe reducing diet provides for you to use 1000 calories a day for the fat stored in your body.

First Day's Menu For Sane Reducers

Here is Commissioner Wynne's menu for the first day allowing 1,200 calories per day.

DON'T RUSH!

BREAKFAST—Juice of 1 orange ... 100 calories
1 soft boiled egg ... 75 calories
1 slice of white bread or toast ... 50 calories
1 level teaspoonful of butter ... 50 calories
½ glass of milk (not cream) for coffee ... 25 calories
Coffee (without sugar)

MID-MORNING—1 glass of milk ... 100 calories
(the milk from the lower half of the bottle)

LUNCH—1 salad of leafy vegetables ... 25 calories
(Among the leafy vegetables are lettuce, romaine, watercress, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, chard, kale, spinach, turnip tops, beet tops, dandelion, greens, chicory and endive. Asparagus, celery, green peppers and string beans have much the same qualities as the leafy vegetables.)
2 soda crackers or 3 saltines ... 50 calories
1 large glass buttermilk ... 100 calories
1 apple ... 100 calories

DR. WYNNE

DIET No. 1

DINNER—1 cup clear bouillon ... 25 calories
3 small crackers ... 50 calories
2 lean lamb chops ... 200 calories
Lettuce, tomato and cucumber salad ... 65 calories
(one tomato sliced, ¼ of a cucumber, no dressing)
½ cup beets, (cooked, no butter) ... 25 calories
Medium serving broccoli ... 25 calories
1 glass milk ... 100 calories
1 slice fresh pineapple ... 50 calories

KATHRYN FINN — FRANCIS BURNS

Kathryn Finn receiving a wine brick from Francis Burns who was arrested. He peddled on a restricted street and his license didn't save him. It was arrest No. 1 in the sale of wine bricks but isn't a test case because the violation wasn't in selling the "congealed firewater."

Mrs. M. J. Proctor Buried in Everett

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret J. Proctor of Chelsea were held in the C. A. Rollins funeral home at 300 Meridian st., East Boston.

The Rev. Herbert T. Coontz, pastor of the Meridian Street Union Methodist Episcopal Church, of which Mrs. Proctor had long been a member, officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

CHILDREN WIN ROLLER SKATE DEMANDS

Score March Into Lynn Mayor's Office, Seeking Use of New Sidewalk

Twenty [illegible] marched from [illegible] Lynn to Lynn City Hall today carrying a banner inscribed:

They trooped [illegible] mayor [illegible] a conference between Mayor J. Fred Manning and Police Chief [illegible]

[illegible] from city hall back to East Lynn carrying a banner inscribed:

WOMEN COMPLAINED

And immediately thereafter, roller skates began to roll again on the new granolithic sidewalk of Friend st. place.

Geraldine LeMaire, 13, spokesman for the group which was composed of children from nine to 14 years old, told Mayor Manning that the new sidewalk of Friend st. place had provided a great roller skating rink for a week until last Tuesday.

Then she said, two women residents of the street complained to police of the noise and a policeman stopped the children from skating.

"It's about the only thing we can play at down there and keep out of the street," Geraldine said.

URGES CONSIDERATION.

"Go ahead and roller skate," the mayor replied. "When there is sickness in the neighborhood, stop. Be thoughtful of others, and others will consider your pleasures."

Among those in the group with Geraldine were her sister, Thelma, and her brother, Woodrow; Florence Pearson, Natalie Stearns, Florabelle Stearns, Norma and James Whiting, Virginia Patterson and June, [illegible]man and Oscar Horth.

Marshall Seeks to Bare Phone Records

Atty. Wycliffe C. Marshall, representing the Boston Central Labor Union in its fight for a reduction in New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. rates, today called on the company to submit copies of all contracts it has with the Western Electric Co., a subsidiary.

Marshall also requested [illegible] the medium of the public utilities commission that the company make a complete state[ment] of all financial transactions between the New England Co., the A. T. & T. and the Western Electric from 1922 to 1930.

Thief Suspect Is Captured in Chase

Charles Meyers, Forest Hills so filling station proprietor, attacked a suspected thief with a hammer in the station office today. When he fled, Meyers called Patrolmen Chubbuck and McIntosh and the three chased the intruder for a half mile, capturing him in Walk Hill st.

The suspect said he was Harold Lambert, also Eastman of Peterboro st., Back Bay. Meyers identified him as a man suspected of taking $45 from the station safe three weeks ago.

Navy Boosts Height Scale in Enlistment

In the future, young men enlisting in the navy must be five feet three inches if they are 17 years old, and five feet four inches if over 17 years old, according to advice received from the navy department by the local navy recruiting station.

This is an increase in the previous standards.

MASQUERADE — A THRILLING LOVE DRAMA — By FAITH BALDWIN

Reporters Greet Fanchon as Niece of the Rich Mrs. Carstairs

By now they all knew that Evelyn was a niece of Mrs. Carstairs—THE Mrs. Carstairs.

What Has Gone Before

Leaving Hawaii shortly after her father's death, young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith goes to San Francisco, where she meets and loves a handsome man named Tony. Fanchon is shocked to learn that Tony is a racketeer, implicated in a recent murder. She, too, is now wanted. Fanchon escapes in an airplane under the name of "Smith." Evelyn Howard, whom she had met on the boat coming from Hawaii, is aboard. Evelyn is en route to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she has never met. After Fanchon confides in Evelyn, the latter treats her coolly. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. She decides to escape Tony and the past and start life anew by masquerading as Evelyn.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER VIII

DR. WARREN took Fanchon's address . . . in care of Mrs. Carstairs. And on her arrival at the depot to await the train, which would be flagged for her, she was given a wire by the station agent.

"Immeasurably happy and grateful for your escape. Will meet you Pennsylvania Station. All my love. Aunt Jennie."

There was no going back.

In the drawing room which [illegible] had engaged Fanchon [illegible] towed coat and hat sat staring out of the windows, listening to the beat of the wheels along the [illegible] tracks [illegible] to [illegible] impostor.

But she argued that in a sense she was doing no real harm. Jennie Carstairs had never known Evelyn Howard. She could therefore never have [illegible] her. The girl was literally nothing to her save someone of her blood to whom she owed a belated [illegible]. If Fanchon took her place Fanchon would be vowed to [illegible] up to it; she would give back value received, for affection and peace she would render affection and duty in return. And when time had passed and there was no longer any danger, she would go quietly away and never bother anyone again. It was not on the cards that Evelyn would live.

She thought of Evelyn dying with no one of her own about her, and her heart constricted with an agony of shame and terror and self loathing. But she had spoken, or rather, she had kept silent. It was too late . . . too late.

Evelyn would die, without recovering consciousness. Jennie Carstairs would be spared much unhappiness and self reproach; and she, Fanchon, would find, for a little time, at least a measure of safety and peace.

She opened Evelyn's big, flat, roomy bag [illegible] stained with [illegible] and with Fanchon's own blood. There were letters in it. From Mrs. Carstairs. Long letters, written in a vital, nervous sort of hand. There was money. There were the photographs of Evelyn's parents; there were snapshots of, Fanchon thought, the place in which Evelyn must have last lived and called home. There were also snapshots of the school in Honolulu and the one in San Francisco.

It would not be hard. She thought of the meeting that lay ahead of her. She longed for it and yet shrank from it. But no great display of affection on her part nor on the part of Mrs. Carstairs would be necessary or even reasonable. For they had never known one another.

Yet Jennie Carstairs' wire had been affectionate in the extreme. Due, thought Fanchon, logically to the situation, to the tremendous peril in which she knew her niece had been placed. It was natural enough. Natural too that she would not ask Evelyn to talk much of the accident.

Half a dozen times before she reached New York, Fanchon was seized with a frantic desire, born of sheer, blind panic, to get out at the first best station, to run away, to hide, to find a ship that sailed for far countries and alien seas, to run away from the old life of Fanchon Meredith, the

DAILY TRUE STORY

PUT UP AT AUCTION

"SIT DOWN, SON," JIMMY, SR. SAID

THERE WASN'T any argument at all, the girl out on the sat was certainly a glorious red-head.

She had one of those figures that reminded Jimmy Barton of the pictures he'd seen in the subway ads for sunburn cream and for stockings, the kind of a figure artists imagine a girl must have, but which not one girl in a million ever owns.

Clean lines, blending into rippling curves just where curves ought to be, and a certain vibrant life that showed all through her. Jimmy Barton had spent his first two years out of college in the Montmartre, dabbling at it with a brush and palette until his Dad had brought him home to go to work.

"Great, isn't it?" he offered as an opening line when the red-head came up out of the blue-green water, and his bronzed arms swung his hundred and eighty pounds of brawn up to the planking where the vision stood.

The eyes that swept down over him with some vestige of approval were approximately the color an artist might put on canvas but which nature clings to in a human head. Wide-spaced eyes—eyes that seemed to take color, chameleon-like from their surroundings. Just now they seemed undecided whether to blend with the jade ocean or the sapphire sky.

"Great enough if one has any interest in anything," she answered and then pursed her red mouth in a moue of disgust at being bothered with the inane questions and headgear. A tight-fitting bathing cap worn at Headlands were.

When her nut-brown curly head bobbed up a second time she was in the rolling sea, combing water-sparkled diamond out of her hair with a shake of the head. Her red-lipped, dripping face headed back toward the float with a stroke or two, and then kicked her flashing white body through the water with all the power and swiftness of a shark.

She Found Interest When Jimmy Appeared

"Haven't you any interest in anything?" Jimmy asked her when she had again pulled herself up on the raft. He knew he felt that he just had to keep up this conversation. If she let her get away, he felt, he might as well quit about that week, and go up to Headlands. Something about the girl had impressed him straight between the eyes.

And the girl didn't seem exactly averse to letting the course of events once started, run along. She stretched out on the planking, her arms before her, her rounded chin on the forearms, her legs bent at the knee. Her eyes again roved over him thoughtfully.

"I didn't have any interest in anything in the world until you came out here on the raft," she drawled, after that look had gone from Jimmy's curly head to his very toes. "Now, I wonder, just a little."

"You know," declared the heir to all the Barton money, "I've felt that very way myself. What say we swap ideas. Maybe we can find some mutual ground. I sort of feel that I've just got to know you, and I can't realize I never saw you until ten minutes ago."

"Or ever will again ten minutes from now"—she finished out his sentence when his own voice stopped.

"Eight to five you do," challenged Jimmy.

But she merely shook her head from side to side.

"You don't know my Aunt Caryl," said the girl.

"You don't know me," countered the boy.

Again there was a suave, broken only by the splash of the sea against the raft. The two of them looked into each other's eyes, searching for some explanation for the strange, magnet-like force that had brought them there and still broke the silence. She began to speak in a voice that seemed dreamy, far away.

"You see," she said, "Aunt Caryl thinks I owe her something. She raised me since I was a little tyke. Until the bottom fell out of the stock market it didn't seem to matter much one way or another. We just went here and there, summers here in Maine and winters in Florida or on the Riviera. Nothing to do but enjoy life and have one real swell time.

"Now—well, I guess Aunt Caryl hasn't much more money and it looks as though I'd have to marry soon."

"You mean she's going to put you on the auction block, let you go to the highest bidder?"

Jimmy Barton somehow felt as though it were an outrage something that he should start a crusade about or something.

"About like that, the girl admitted, and her eyes, now more blue than green, looked frankly into his brown eyes.

"I won't have it," fairly shouted Jimmy Barton. "It's like a throwback to the days of Roman slaves. It's revolting. I tell you it's beastly."

Eluded Him The Swim Was Over

"But you don't know Aunt Caryl," the girl cut in, pausing; "and, besides, I like caviar and motor cars."

She rose leisurely, stretched to her full, splendid height with the sinuous grace of a kitten in the sun. Jimmy fairly devoured her with his eyes. And he was still watching when she arched again into the sea, came up with another shake of her curly head and was off toward the boathouse.

But try as he could when he plunged in startled after her he couldn't make up the distance and quickly saw her white legs flashing toward the women's lockers when he, puffing like a porpoise, reached the beach. He dressed as might a fireman, but when he got out into the open again she was gone.

James Barton, Sr. found his offspring pacing up and down the clubhouse veranda when the steel king came down for dinner later on.

"Sit down, son," he ordered, briskly, and Jimmy, Jr., did as he was told.

"We're going to have dinner with some people," his father began, and Jimmy heard him talk as though far away. "The people are old friends of mine. I knew one of them, the elder one, when I was a kid, have known her right along, and I can only say that she is from one of the best families in the land. The younger one, her niece, is a splendid girl. I want you to know her.

"You see, it's about time you began to think about settling down."

Jimmy started to put up objections. Then he heard his father say with a strange decisive accent:

"James"

"When it was James, instead of "son" or "Jimmy"—well, the younger Barton sank wearily back into a chair.

Later, when dinner for four had been completed, and Jimmy Jr., had been introduced to Mrs. Caryl Sommers and her niece, Gloria Brand, and Mrs. Sommers, nee James Barton Sr. caught the wink that preceded Jimmy Junior's suggestion that he and Gloria go for a motor ride in the moonlight.

$1,260,000 FAKE LOTTERY PLOT NIPPED HERE

GIVE 'EM ROOM IN NEW TROT

It looks as if dance managers will have to get a lot of extra floor space if everyone starts dancing the "100"—latest terpischorean craze. It's already very popular at Roof Gardens and other dancing places. The team of Vincent and Norma demonstrate the correct posture for the new step, which is akin to the fox trot. BUSINESS MEN HELP TO FOIL SWINDLERS

Postal Officials Quick to Block Fraud Based on Pimlico Futurity

A fake lottery that threatened to draw $1,260,000 from the United States was nipped today by the Boston Better Business Bureau and postal authorities.

It was named The Coast Race International Sweepstakes on the Pimlico Futurity to be run November 3 at Baltimore, Md.

Thousands of letters have already been received in this country, and more were expected, but no one was issued until an order of the Boston Automobile Association notified the bureau.

SENT LOCAL FIRMS

Officials of the bureau [illegible] a number over to Park [illegible] Co. and postal inspectors Snow and Fox, and Inspector Colvin notified authorities at Washington and a "fraud order" was issued against [illegible] sponsored the Costa Rican [illegible] named on the letterhead.

The tickets were sent in books of 12 [illegible] you concerns in Boston [illegible] to be sold.

They were purported to be from the Welfare Society of Costa Rica and were accompanied by a letter [illegible] explained they were sent because of the concern's good standing in the community.

Each book were to be sold and the remaining two be retained as compensation for the sale of the ten. The lottery, according to the letter, was approved by the Costa Rican government and was to be the means of 2000 prizes ranging as much as $250,000.

NO RECORD OF SOCIETY

According to postal authorities no record of the Welfare Society of Costa Rica has been found, and no explanation of it's officials or standing was contained in the letter with the tickets.

The scheme was a novel one in view of the attempts to enlist the aid of business concerns as selling agents for the $2 tickets.

TWO CRIPPLED BOYS ARE HEROES IN PARALYSIS BLOOD GIFT

1 HITCH-HIKES 20 MILES TO GIVE SERUM

Other Refuses to Let Broken Leg Deter Him Aiding the Victims; 19 New Cases

Tales of heroism and unselfishness in the infantile paralysis spread were recited today by Dr. George H. Bigelow, State commissioner of public health as he returned from a trip to the western part of the State.

A youth, crippled by the disease, hitch-hiked 20 miles to Holyoke to give blood for serum, as a result there yesterday, it was revealed.

Another youthful volunteer, Fred Fairbanks of Northampton, was taken to the Holyoke hospital in an ambulance from his home. He had promised to give blood. A few days ago he broke a leg, but refused to let this keep him away.

BLOOD FOR ONLY 100

Dr. Bigelow announced 19 new cases throughout the state today, a decrease under the past two days. The total this month is now 249.

Boston has four new cases; Holyoke four, Greenfield and Springfield two each, and Cumberdale, Hadley, Malden, Pittsfield, Wareham, Westfield and Weston, one each.

"A clinic for gathering blood for serum will be held tomorrow at the senior high school on Columbia st., Watertown," said the commissioner. "Such cases as I have cited indicate the spirit with which former sufferers are helping present victims. We must have blood enough to make serum for treating about 100 cases."

The case of a Quincy boy, Lars Thunke, 10, who was ill one day and then played outdoors for four days before the symptoms again attacked him, was among those reported today.

21 AT HAYNES MEMORIAL

This boy is one of 21 patients with the disease at Haynes Memorial, the contagious division of the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital, Allston st., Allston.

At the same hospital is Stanislaus Holmes, 30, father of five children, a poultryman of Middleboro. The patient is in the Drinker respirator continually. He was taken to the hospital Tuesday, two days after he was stricken.

The condition of the Quincy boy, who has been undergoing respirator treatment since Aug. 5, has improved sufficiently to permit its removal twice a day for 45-minute periods.

"He's made up a game of guessing people's ages, and that shows what courage the boy has," said his nurse.

ADULTS STRICKEN TOO

He has postcards received from schoolmates pasted on his breathing machine, and other children at the hospital have followed his lead.

Commenting on the case of the Middleboro farmer, Dr. Edward F. Smith, resident physician at the Haynes Memorial said:

"It is not unusual for adults living in rural district to have this disease. Probably 90 per cent of the adults living in cities are immune.

BUCKING FLIVVER LANDS IN SAUSAGES AND PORK CHOPS

When a small roadster driven by Clarence Wilson, 21, of Mt. Pleasant st., Cambridge, went out of control today in Ivy st., Back Bay, it jumped the curbing and crashed through the display window of the Harvard Meat Market. The crash threw Wilson into the midst of a tempting array of hams, steaks, chops and frankfurters, from which he was extracted by witnesses of the mishap. In Peter Bent Brigham Hospital he was treated for numerous cuts and a broken nose. (Staff photo.)

Fanchon on Train for New York

[illegible]

"You have a very bad shock and shaking up," Doctor Warren had said, "and I wish you would stay on with Mrs. Lawson for a few days. But, if you won't, you won't. Only my orders—professional orders, are—that when you reach your destination, you permit yourself to be put to bed and you stay there . . ."

She had [illegible]

She knew [illegible] was safer not to antagonize them. [illegible] The train stopped over here for half an hour. During that time Fanchon told them what she recalled of the accident itself . . . of the first part of the flight. Eamon [illegible] had been an important man in his town. This was being played up in the press. The [illegible] McKinon, for he had had a war record and had also been pilot on a successful flight from England to Australia. He also was news [illegible] the reporters, not callous [illegible] simply seeking to feed their master, the insatiable press.

And Fanchon herself was news. By now [illegible] Evelyn Howell was a niece of Mrs. Carstairs, the Mrs. Carstairs. That was news. And news too [illegible] the same station at which the reporters [illegible]

[illegible] would have come on and brought you the rest of the way, but he is in Canada and cannot be reached in time," wired "Aunt Jennie."

Collin? thought Fanchon. But during their rapid fire conversation the reporters enlightened her. Collin was Mrs. Carstairs' only son. A big game hunter. A polo player. An eligible bachelor. One of the most eligible. He was in the North Woods at present, she learned simply by [illegible] when one of the reporters [illegible] her. "We understand that Mr. Colin Carstairs is up North?" and [illegible] nodding intelligently.

She had not. But a cameraman was there. Fanchon raised her hands protestingly. No picture, she begged.

She hadn't thought of that. Tony might see the picture . . . Tony might recognize her.

The picture was however taken. She thought courageously that after all some hope was left. Newspaper pictures were notoriously unrecognizable. The borrowed hat had shadowed her face and her face itself was pale and a most gaunt with the shock of what she had been through. He might not see it or seeing recognize her.

They asked her about Miss Smith. To all their questions she replied, as there was now no one left of all the party to bear witness against her, that she had never seen the other girl until they boarded the plane together. That she understood she had made her home in San Francisco and was leaving it to [illegible] work—library work, Fanchon thought—in New York.

FROCKS FOR EVENING

With Draped Effect

SKETCHED IN PARIS

The frock to the left is typical of the new collection of the maison Cheruit. The material is light, wine-colored moire, with new and becoming line. Another smart example of draped evening frock is to be found in the Bruyere model sketched. It is of dull-surfaced ivory satin. The bodice is interestingly arranged with a capelet effect at one side, and the end of the long sash draped over the opposite shoulder.

Make Most of Tomato Season

By MARTHA LEE

DURING August and September [illegible] to make the most of the tomato crop [illegible] this delicious vegetable has become since the [illegible] of the tomato juice cocktail. Perhaps [illegible] for canning the tomato [illegible]

Martha Lee

CANNING TOMATO JUICE

Putting up tomato juice is a hot pack method. Chop [illegible] 6 onions, 2 carrots, 2 or 3 stalks of celery, a turnip and 2 or 3 sweet peppers. Cover with boiling water and [illegible] A few cloves and a bay leaf may be added. Add to 4 quarts of tomatoes and simmer about 20 minutes. Put through a colander [illegible] season to taste with salt and pepper and add enough boiling water to make of the right consistency for tomato juice cocktail. Bring to a boil, [illegible] and fill hot sterilized jars to overflowing. Seal [illegible] By omitting the addition of the water with the tomatoes you will get a tomato puree that can be canned for soup and tomato sauce.

CANNING TOMATOES

Tomatoes should be gathered in shallow baskets and the picking done quickly. The canning should be done within an hour or two from the time of picking. Wash, put in trays or squares of cheese cloth and blanch in boiling water for 1 minute. Remove at once and plunge into cold water. Drain promptly. Cut out the core with a slender pointed knife, being careful not to cut into the seed cells. Pack [illegible] tomatoes whole or in large pieces. Add 1 tsp. of salt and 1 tsp. sugar to each jar. Partly seal and process for 25 minutes in water bath or 10 minutes in pressure cooker with 10 lbs. steam.

If there are any special tomato recipes either for canning or cooking that you'd like to have, you know right where I live most of the time, right down here at 5 Winthrop Square, and it is always a pleasure to hear from you. Remember that convenient loose 2c stamp please.

Faithfully yours,

BLUSHING BUNNIES

1 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt.
1½ cups evaporated milk
2 cans tomato soup
6 eggs
12 tbsps. grated cheese
6 slices cooked ham or 12 slices broiled bacon
6 slices toast

Mix flour and salt. Add milk slowly to make a smooth paste. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Heat tomato soup. Drop eggs one at a time into hot soup and sprinkle with 6 tbsp. cheese. Cover and let eggs poach slowly until whites are set. Arrange ham or bacon on buttered toast. Place one egg on each serving. Pour soup slowly into hot milk mixture, stirring constantly. Pour over eggs and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Serves 6.—Mrs. Carrie L. Andrews, Richmond, Me.

Preysing's joints felt hollow as he stood alone in the lounge after the close of the conference when the provisional agreement had been signed and Dr. Zinnowitz had taken his leave with all sorts of complimentary remarks. The feeling of a great success, the consciousness of having successfully bluffed the Chemnitz crowd and the strain of talking and of triumphing under false pretences were all entirely new to the general director and left him in a strange and not unpleasant tumult. He looked at the hotel clock—past three—and went meechanically to the telephone to get a call put through to the works.

Next he wandered into the half empty dining room and ordered the lunch on the menu without a glance at it. While he scanned the wine list he hummed a tune which he had picked up somewhere in Berlin. Later he detected himself sipping his soup [illegible] as it sometimes happened in moments of distraction that his table manners betrayed his humble origin. The situation he was in appeared to him fortunate but extremely obscure.

Be His Friend Only, Warns Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am 30 years old, although I don't look it, and am taken for 16 many times. But I have been hiding from the social life and have not gone out with the boys. One day I was introduced to a man about 32 years old, and he made a date with me. I liked him very much, and have wanted another date so much. I see him every day, but he just greets me and goes on. I have heard that he was married and divorced about six years ago. I shall appreciate whatever you may tell me, as I have no mother.

A FRIEND.

Dear Friend: It seems to me what you need is self-confidence. I should not do more than show a friendly interest in this man with whom you have had one date. If it is true that he is married, I would not encourage him at all but, on the other hand, if he is a divorced man, certainly his experience should give him the proper technique to pursue a friendship with you if he cares to do so. I should advise you to go out as much as possible and meet other people.

Reading Aloud as Cure for Stammering

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

STAMMERING is a common distressing affliction. It has been recognized for many centuries. Only within the past few decades has it been [illegible] of this condition.

Dr. Copeland

In former times it was believed that stammering resulted from some disturbance in the development of the speech organs. It used to be thought that it was caused by weakness of the tongue and that the condition could be removed by [illegible] wine in moderation because the wine produced heat.

It is now believed that stammering is the result of impediment in thought and that it is not primarily a disorder of the speech organs. This disability affects the speech only because speech follows thought. According to this theory the [illegible] of the man who stammers to think the words clearly in his mind.

There are special schools for the training of stammerers. [illegible] are placed in classes and [illegible] simple methods of fluent speech.

Among such methods is [illegible] reading which is done aloud and in unison. Later the [illegible] alone. If at any time, they should stammer the group immediately joins in and thus carries the stammerer over his difficulty. Eventually these pupils find themselves reading alone and gradually they overcome the stammering.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. H. C. Q. What causes me [illegible] energy and to be depressed in spirit all the time? I am troubled with headaches and my hands are [illegible] [illegible] Can this be remedied?

A. You may be troubled with low blood pressure.

In every case of this kind a thorough examination must be made to determine the extent of the trouble and the degree of vision. In some instances proper fitting glasses will relieve the condition, but most times an operation is necessary. Consult a competent eye specialist and have him advise you concerning the child.

Romans Knew How to Build and Create Beauty

By WINIFRED BLACK

WONDERFUL old city—Rome.

How long is it since you've been there?

It's changed a good deal in the last few years. [illegible] better [illegible] fewer mosquitos and no Roman [illegible] speak of any [illegible]

[illegible] nowadays [illegible] farmers [illegible]

But the beauty and the dignity and the splendor of Rome are there [illegible]

[illegible] in every other corner glorious fountains with real statues and real water. Why don't we have some fountains like that in our cities in America?

Skyscrapers, underground roads, great luxurious hotels, but not a fountain that's worthy of the name from one end of America to the other.

The Lake Shore in Chicago ought to boast of a dozen fountains.

Riverside Drive in New York ought to have fifty beautiful fountains at least from one end to the other.

And somehow they are always with you wherever you go in Rome. The proud, steady, godlike creatures carved in marble.

I saw three of them in just one little, short day.

The Moses of Michael Angelo, the Apollo Belvedere and Venus Rising from the Sea. And the stupid old world we live in today will never be quite the same to me again.

I'm going to stop thinking about this cross, fussy old world we live in—we Moderns—and shut my eyes and see again Moses, with his calm dignity, Venus laughing with the joy of life as she rises from the foaming waves. And oh, how I love to remember the chiseled beauty and natural dignity of the white Apollo who makes a joke of the warped and twisted thing we call a human being today.

I like to think of them, the Great Immortals, in the splendid galleries of the ancient city of Rome.

Life—what a mess we do make of it, we poor simple fools who flatter ourselves that we have left ignorance and cruelty so far behind.

What one thing have we to show that can be compared for one minute either to the great marble Moses or to the beautiful Venus or to the simple and splendid virility of Apollo?

I ask you.

FANNING

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Packy and Jim. | 8 Title Holders.
Fighting Micks. | McLarnin's Prey.
Never Champion. | Battles Tonight.

WILL LEONARD MEET SAMMY FULLER?

McLarnin ne'er was champion, yet leads all the rest.
Yet nary a ring bauble, Jim did win himself!

Champion and best are synonymous. Yet a champion isn't always the best and sometimes the best man isn't champion. There are two striking illustrations of this in boxing, one past, one present. Packy McFarland and Jimmy McLarnin. Packy McFarland was the greatest boxer of his day, as Jimmy McLarnin is of the present, yet neither the curly haired Celt from Chicago nor the smiling faced Irish lad from Vancouver ever won a title. McFarland beat Freddie Welsh in a world's title match in England, but was the victim of a decision, to which 99 per cent of the British boxing writers at the ringside took exception. Welsh promised to give McFarland a return match in America. But Freddie's wily manager, Harry Pollok, saw that Welsh and McFarland never entered the same ring again, even in a no-decision bout. Harry knew what would have happened. Packy would have knocked Freddie colder than a salted herring.

Packy packed dynamite in both hands but he stopped knocking them out when he found that his knockouts were barring the matchmaker's doors. Being a marvelous boxer McFarland was content to outpoint them. We once saw Leach Cross land but one blow in 10 rounds on McFarland. That was on Packy's buttocks, when he was a trifle late in sidestepping a rush and swing. The only way McFarland could get matches in later years was to "carry" his opponents. He never faked and always won, but he did shackle his haymaker. He was "carrying" Kid Burns the night the Kid gave Packy the only black eye he ever had. Poor Burns paid dearly for it. Packy got him in a return match and made boarding house hash out of him.

Jimmy McLarnin's career runs strangely parallel to McFarland's. Never a champion McLarnin has beaten eight champions Pancho Villa, Bud Taylor, Fidel La Barba, Jackie Fields, Louis Kid Kaplan, Sammy Mandell, Young Jack Thompson and Al Singer. All these fighters were champions at the time or before or after McLarnin defeated them.

Tonight at Yankee Stadium, New York, McLarnin will crawl through the ropes in a rubber match against Billy Petrolle, the man who gave Jimmy the outstanding licking of his career. To be sure in a second match Smiling Jimmy came back and turned the tables on Petrolle, just as Jimmy did on Sammy Mandell, Ray Miller and others who were lucky enough to beat him the first time out. But the fact remains that only once in his career was McLarnin given a thorough lambasting. Petrolle battered him to a pulp and had him tottering on the verge of a knockout.

Because of McLarnin's already turning the tables on his erstwhile conqueror and because of his all around fistic greatness Jimmy can box, Jimmy can hit, he has a great fighting heart fighting head and is a consummate ring general—the gambling gentry have made him favorite over Petrolle tonight.

There are danger signs along the trail, however. Prosperity's fingers are beginning to soften Jimmy up. He doesn't dissipate, but he has enough money to have about what he wants. He lives "easy." A fighter has to live "hard" to keep a fighting edge on his fighting blade. Students of physical training also take exception to Jimmy's having played around the water while conditioning himself for Petrolle. Salt water is great for the tired business man. Any trainer, however, will tell you, an athlete in training for a strenuous contest of speed, stamina, and endurance should limit his bathing to a shower or at most an "in and out" plunge.

The once great Benny Leonard probably will be matched with tonight's winner. A McLarnin vs. Leonard match in New York, provided Benny can show a semblance of return to his old fighting form, would attract a record gate for little fellows in Gotham. A Leonard-Petrolle match would draw almost as big a gate, for an Italian-Jew headliner in New York always is a money maker.

But why should Leonard be allowed to step right out of the past into a McLarnin or a Petrolle match, without first proving his present condition and ability in a try-out match? If Benny is so sure of his fighting self why doesn't he climb into the ring against a fellow like our own Sammy Fuller?

The answer is that Sammy probably would knock the present day Leonard loose from his moorings. Sammy is a modern prototype of Rocky Kansas. Leonard at his peak found Rocky a tough nut to crack. A 12-round no-decision go was a toosup. Leonard beat Kansas in a 15-round bout for the title and later stopped him in 8 rounds after Rocky had broken his arm. Sammy Fuller is as good as Kansas was at his peak. Leonard has gone back. You will not see wily Jack Kearns letting Benny Leonard get in the same ring with Sammy Fuller.

Whenever you mention our Sammy,
For Leonard of today Sam would stow in the hay,
Or knock him clear to Alabam'!

British Net Ace Enters Finals at Newport

Newport, R. I., Aug. 20 (AP)—Frederick J. Perry, British tennis star, today gained the final round of the Newport Casino tournament when Sydney Wood defaulted.

Wood was seized with a painful leg cramp, a discomfort he often suffers, when the Britisher reached the match point on his opponent's service in the 12th game of the fifth set.

Perry's scores for the five completed sets were 6-3, 7-6, 1-6, 1-6 and he had a 40-15 lead. Wood's service pending but a single point for a 7-6 decision in the deciding set when the pitiers left the medal game was.

Several of the officials here Perry, a meeting Wood only and the tournament appeared for several seconds as the New Yorker tested it with a serve, but the cramp however interfered with such a play that Wood also fell flat.

He was willing to go on but Perry and several of the officials prevailed upon him to avoid further injury to the leg by default.

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 19 (AP)—The Pleon Yacht Club of Boston, Mass.; the Lasconia of N. Y. Club and the Rose Neva Yacht & Sailing Club of Toronto, Ont., are the semi-finalists in trials for the Prince of Wales trophy.

The preliminary were run in Mahone Bay, Yarmouth today and will be continued tomorrow when the first race in the quarter finals can be decided between the Pleon and the Rose Neva. Sunday will be used as a rest day.

Seven preliminary races were sailed today. The Lasconia defeated Vineyard Haven, Mass., in straight heats, the Rose Neva Sea Scout squad defeated the Robyson, Long Island, in two straight, and the Pleon club eliminated the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead, Mass.

Shelburne and Corinthians sailed but one race which was won by Corinthians.

The yachts made good time over the four-mile course, the best being 38 minutes and 53 seconds by the Pleon Yacht club. Today's semi-finals will be raced tomorrow, best two out of three heats. The finals, three out of five races, will be sailed Friday.

GROVE TAKES 16TH STRAIGHT

A. G. Spaulding, Tim Keefe, Rube Marquard, Walter Johnson, Joe Wood and now Robert Moses Grove.

The star pitcher of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics entered baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday by beating the Chicago White Sox 4 to 2 for his 16th straight victory, which equals the American League record for consecutive victories chalked up by Walter Johnson of the Senators and Joe Wood of the Red Sox in 1912.

Three more straight and Robert Moses will equal the major league mark of 19 in a row set first by Tim Keefe of the Metropolitans of the New York Giants back in 1888 and duplicated by Rube Marquard of the Giants in 1912.

And there is a good bet that Grove Moses will do more than equal this record before he is through. A. G. Spaulding's feat of winning 24 straight was original in the National Association in 1875, one year before the organization of the National League.

Grove triumphed over the White Sox was not only his 16th victory in a row but his 25th in 27 starts this season. He should pitch at least ten more games before the close of the campaign and chances are not he is able to add to his string of consecutive wins he is almost certain to finish up with more than 30 victories, a mark no pitcher has done since 1920 when Jim Bagby of Cleveland won 31.

If may also better the best season's record ever turned in by a big league hurler. The mark is 37 and Joe Wood in 1912 when he won 34 and lost five games.

The showing of Connie Mack's marvelous pastimers this year is no fash in the pan. He never before enjoyed even a successful season like this but he has been rated baseball's greatest pitcher for the past five years.

This test PROVED 25% more mileage

TWO well advertised brands of 6 ply tires were scientifically road tested against the 6 ply LEE De Luxe. An impartial and uniform test was made by changing the tires from wheel to wheel every 3 days. The wear was checked by our engineers with precision instruments.

One tire listing at considerably higher price gave only 66% of the mileage of the LEE 6 Ply De Luxe.

The other tire, also selling for more, gave only 79% of the mileage of the LEE 6 Ply De Luxe.

This test is only one of many made with practically similar results which justifies our statement that the Heavy Duty 6 Ply De Luxe Balloons, 6 full plies from bead to bead, give 25% more miles than any other tire sold at or near the price.

The LEE WAY selling method places one low net cash price on each tire; the same at all dealers. No hidden mark-ups; no secret discounts.

LACK OF INFIELD RESERVES HURTS BRAVES

SECOND BASE PAIR LACKS NEEDED REST

By JOE CASHMAN

After completing the last half of the current campaign with a percentage of better than .500, the Braves have lost seven more games than they have won since starting on the last lap of the race.

Weak hitting is blamed for the lackening in speed on the part of the Tribe who is not natural enough in view of the fact that the club has the league's batting average a couple points higher than it was at the start of the season.

In the Boston camp it is generally conceded that the infield is more than to blame for the Braves' failure to hold their early season pace in the home stretch.

The Warriors were a fast outfit, if any better when they were up in the first division. They were defeated two games out of the first struggle than they are today when they need only a handful of games over the sixth place Pirate.

And they didn't have the pennant as much pitching strength a few early stages of the race as they can boast of at present.

Second Base Pair Kept Team in Running

They did though, have the best second base combination in the league. That's why they were in the money. They still have the same keystone pair, but the wear and strain of playing almost continually since April 15 has robbed both Rabbit Maranville and Freddie Maguire of much of their speed and energy. That's why Judge McKechnie is in danger of failing into fourth place at the moment, as we look at it.

Maranville and Maguire at their best are second to none as a defensive keystone combination, and with a little assistance are capable of keeping almost any club in the running for a first division berth.

Neither, however, is at his best when he has to play more than 140 games without one good rest, as each has had to do for the Braves this year.

Maranville, who is old and Maguire too light to perform at top speed day in and day out for a full season, has been using a week or two days off in mid-season and he will finish up as far as he started, but he is bound to show up at the finish of the season if he is forced to play continually.

Manager Bill McKechnie realizes this but he hasn't given Maranville or Maguire a real vacation this year because he has nobody on the bench to take the place of the pair.

Judge Fuchs also realizes it and has tried all season to find capable substitutes for the Braves' keystone duo, but without success.

Maranville and Maguire Need Rest

The pitching strength and hustle and fight of the Braves may come to them home in fifth place but unless Maranville and Maguire can be given a rest in the near future the outlook for the team finishing in the first division isn't very promising.

AN IRISHMAN NAMED PAT

Did you ever hear this one? It seemed there was an Irishman named Pat who was a great jumper. Here you see him—PAT, the Irish jumper taking Miss JEANETTE McGREGOR over the jump just as he will do at the North Scituate Riding Club Show next Tuesday. Don't Pat and Miss Jeanette make a pretty pair?

SOUTH SHORE FIT FOR TITLE TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

After weeks of extensive conditioning, the South Shore Country Club course is primed for its annual two-day open 18 hole handicap medal play tournament, which starts tomorrow.

Every one of the clubs in the South Shore golf committee has never attempted to truly rate the course for the open tournament. South Shore is not a difficult course. Nevertheless an easy one. It does require accuracy and off line shots are penalized.

Pres. James H. Kimball is counting on some player from Quincy and South Shore in the 60's during the two days of play. He has confidence that one of the two will be forced to the front during the final round and be pressed hard by a couple of the leaders. A high total will be necessary to win.

At present, Joe Lynch, Allerton, holds the South Shore course record, 67, and incidentally tied three players have ever broken the par of the West Hingham course.

Dick Woodsum a homebred, was the first player to shoot a 67 score on the 6644 and during the season New England Shoe and Leather tournament last spring Hank Ekstrom chipped a stroke off Woodsum's mark with his 66 which was made during the rainy season when preferred lies were allowed.

Frank H. Coleman, chairman of the tournament committee, has purchased one of the finest array of prizes for the South Shore open ever offered by any club in this State. The field will be divided into three classes, scratch to eight, nine to 17 and 18 to 24. The club will handicap 12 points a gross and two net for each division.

Tourney Should Draw Large Field

Under favorable weather conditions the two-day South Shore open should draw the largest field in the annals of M. G. A. tournaments in West Hingham. Jimmie Guilfoyle, lead the field last year with a 75 but it is expected that there will be more than a dozen players in action this season and it will take a card in the low 70s to be in the money.

The members of the South Shore Country Club are banking on Bunny Wilson to carry off the top honors. Wilson is playing great golf at present, as attested by his 72 at Hatherly, which was only one stroke above Fred Wright's round, which gave the state champion, the low gross and 68 at Gold Coast.

Players who wish to reserve starting times should call Hingham 0293.

IS THIS BABY FACE?

Yes, it's "Baby," JIMMY McLARNIN, trying to make a face and apparently succeeding. Jimmy is trying to show how ferocious he will look when he answers the gong against Billy Petrolle in Yankee Stadium, tonight. McLarnin is favorite.

M'LARNIN, PETROLLE GO TONIGHT

New York, Aug. 20 (U.S. The first time they fought everyone said it was a crying shame to feed a shell-shocked old wreck like Billy Petrolle to that home-crushing man-killer, Jimmy McLarnin. Most everyone stayed away.

The second time those who went the first time stayed home because they couldn't bear to see McLarnen take another such beating which was just as well. There was barely enough room for the stay-aways who had missed the first one.

They meet for the third time at the Yankee Stadium tonight, the now thoroughly respected "wreck" and the idolized Irishman.

And once again the curious psychology of the boxing addict is stacking Jess Willam F. Carey and Thomas J. McArdle on their respective ears.

Petrolle won the first McLarnin win the second and this third-round engagement is set and match, but a strange apathy has settled over the populace.

The feeling between the principals is intense, and there is every reason to believe one of them will wind up a his shoulder blades.

Diamond Dust

—By JOE CASHMAN—

In an effort to make room in a row over the last-place Tigers, Manager Shano Collins of the Red Sox will send Howie Long to the mound in the second game of the series in Detroit this afternoon.

Long has been wrenched out of the box in his last two starts by the Philadelphia Athletics, but the Tigers are the least feared team and a comeback is expected that he can duplicate this afternoon.

Danny MacFayden chalked up his 11th win of the season in the opening game of the engagement. Thanks to Wiley Moore, "Deacon" was given a four-run lead in the first frame and he managed to go into the ninth leading, 9 to 3, but then he collapsed and the Tigers scored three runs before Moore could retire the side.

The victory gave the Red Sox undisputed possession of sixth place as the White Sox lose to the Athletics and put them 3½ games up on the Tigers.

The Giants went back into second place in the National League race by a fraction of a point over the Cubs by beating the Red Sox, while the Windy City outfit was split in a twin bill with the Robins.

The champion Cubs have signed one more game lead over their New York rivals by defeating a double-header with the Phillies.

Paul Waner's six-for-six performance in the opener against the Tigers did not help to add to his batting total.

HORSE SHOW ON AT COHASSET

The Cohasset horse show opens three days of competition today at the Hill estate of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft at Cohasset with an entry of more than 175 horses slated for the 63 classes on the program.

Prize money totaling $3500 will be distributed.

New Sport Introduced

—By M. T. McSWEENEY—

There is a new sport, not yet classified or formally recognized. It is a cross between the Battle of the Boyne and the Argentine tango.

This new sport was first exhibited at Lynn a few nights ago. Since it has no name, it will have to be described. Two men, giants in stature, thick of neck, with ears like tulip bulbs, enter a ring and are introduced as wrestlers. That's so the customers will be all the more surprised at what happens.

The rivals go through the orthodox motions of wrestling for about five minutes. Then things begin to happen. One of the principals begins to jab and hook his opponent. Said opponent starts swinging from his heels. In less time than it takes to recite the Declaration of Independence backward, both rivals are giving a fine imitation of a fight.

Finally, one contender hurls the other through the ropes. Then the customers at the ringside join in the battle. The man who is hurled through the ropes, evidently is allowed under the rules to heave a chair at his opponent. Other chairs are broken, and it seems, at this point, the police are called.

When the referee, who all this time has been reading the Police Gazette, is tapped lightly on the head with the leg of a chair, he declares the bout no contest, and the fans go home wondering what they have seen.

This new sport is becoming very popular, except with ringside customers, who have not yet gotten used to catching 250-pound human projectiles.

DEMPSEY SCORES K. O.

EX-CHAMPION RETAINS PUNCH

Reno, Aug. 20 (AP) [illegible] years' absence from the boxing ring apparently has not impaired the slugging proclivities of Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion.

The Manassa mauler, boxing at 198 pounds, began last night a series of exhibitions which may end in an attempt to regain the heavyweight crown, with a knockout of Jack Beasley, Oakland, Cal.

After flooring his 18-pound opponent for counts of eight and nine early in the second round, Dempsey landed a short left that ended before the halfway mark, what was to have been a four-round bout.

A series of lefts and rights to the body had Beasley in distress before the second round was fairly underway. The sun-bronzed Dempsey was breathing easy at the finish.

Tiger Jack Never Hit After the First Round

Twisting, turning, weaving and rolling, Jack seemed much the same Dempsey as when he met Willard, Firpo and all the others. Beasley never laid a glove on him after the first round.

Jack plainly was nervous when he entered the ring accompanied by "Jerry the Greek" Luvadis, who trained him for all of his championship battles. But he quickly got over his "stage fright."

Dempsey mauled Beasley around a bit in the first round, but seemed content for the most part to get back into fighting swing. Beasley landed three straight lefts to the face.

The former champion was to have boxed two rounds with Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, but that bout was called off, assertedly because Fuente had two broken ribs.

A tour through the Northwest by Dempsey is scheduled to begin August 24 in Portland, Ore. Later Jack plans exhibitions in the Mid West and East.

Last Boxing Bout Was With Tunney

Dempsey's last previous ring engagement was September 22, 1927, in Chicago, when he lost a 10-round decision to Gene Tunney, then champion. After this bout Dempsey's followers claimed the referee gave Tunney a long count when Dempsey had floored him in the later rounds.

Almost a year to the day before this, September 23, 1926, in Philadelphia, Tunney won the championship from Dempsey, also by decision, in 10 rounds. Dempsey won the title July 4, 1919 in Toledo from Jess Willard, when the former Kansan failed to answer the bell for the fourth round.

Mayor Manning Opens New Course

Mayor Fred J. Manning of Lynn, playing golf for the first time in his life, opened the Happy Valley golf course at Lynn Woods. The new nine hole affair is a membership proposition limited to residents of the Shoe City. Just to add color to the occasion, James Gannon and his brother Lawrence engaged in a foursome with Billy McPhail and Alex Ellis. All four veterans praised the new layout.

Burke Beats Tilden

Crawford Notch, N. H., Aug. 20 (INS)—A four-set victory was held today by Albert Burke, professional at the Cannes Club, France, over big Bill Tilden, world champion tennis professional, 6—1, 2—6, 11—9, 7—5, in the first official meeting.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Professionals often whittle [illegible] their clubs to the point where the irons barely peek from the top of the bag. They strive for head heaviness in the irons with shorter shaft length, since they have hand and wrist muscles to control a heavy clubhead. Knowing [illegible] tendency among them, it occurred to me that a short putter, to be used with but one hand, might be the solution of putting difficulties. This is center-shafted and has a handle about a foot long. I call it the paddle putter. With it I simply stoop down and rake 'em in. I got the idea for this partly from a one-handed player whose method of putting consists of resting his right hand against his knee, the putt stroke then being made by working his knee back and forth. If you like the idea of the paddle putter write me and I'll give you one.

DAILY SHOTS FROM EVERYWHERE

Right down the Middle! Charley Koscis, 18-year-old Detroit amateur golf star, has just nudged one a few hundred yards down the line. Charley will be one of the headliners in the National Amateur at Beverly, Chicago, soon.

THE DAILY DOZEN

The English Channel swimmers, who have caused untold suffering among the manufacturers of axel grease, tug boat owners and official greeters by failing to attempt the treacherous stretch between England and France, even refusing to drown in training.

The Red Sox, for not coming from behind and overtaking the Athletics.

Jim Londos, for not losing whatever title he holds after a thrilling struggle in which he was unable to use his famous airplane whirl and body slam.

STAR PAIRS IN LONGWOOD TITLE PLAY

[illegible] Allison and Van Ryn, No. 1; Mangin and Bell, No. 2; [illegible] and Wood, No. 4; [illegible] Vines and [illegible], No. 5, will compete.

Twenty-one [illegible] representing every section of the country, and also the Perry-Hughes of England start [illegible] on Monday. In the mixed doubles George Lott will team with Betty Nuthall, Frank Shields is paired with Helen Jacobs, and Wilmer Allison plays with Mrs. L. A. Harper.

DEAN HANGS UP 24TH VICTORY

Houston, Tex., Aug. 20 (AP)—Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, the eccentric former Western League right hander sent by the Cardinals to their Houston Texas League farm after spring training, continues to hurl in dazzling fashion.

In winning his 24th game of the season by shutting out Ft. Worth 8 to 0 last night Dean ran his season strike-outs to 2?3. This, however, was still below the all-time league record set at 325 in 1910 by Harry Ables, left-hander, for San Antonio. Fourteen Ft. Worth batsmen were strike-out victims and only four hits were made off Dean.

Jockey James Back Booting Winners

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—Eugene James, former Louisville newsboy, is back in the saddle again, booting the thoroughbreds of the turf down past the judges' stand in the same style that made him the season's sensation in the Middle-Western and Southern tracks last year.

He has lost his apprentice allowance and has just recovered from a long siege in the hospital the result of an appendicitis operation, but his performances at Saratoga the last few days indicates he is the James of 1930.

Incidents of Other Days Recalled

Studio Gentry Remember When

By N. F. T.

Favored lately by fate, enjoying fame and fortune to the [illegible] more than a few radio celebrities [illegible] gazing over a [illegible] the past now and again. In such a mood personalities of the air relate many [illegible] anecdotes.

[illegible] WPAW [illegible] Pawtucket [illegible] in 1928.

THREATENED BY K. K. K.

Owned and operated by a certain Mr. Shottenberg, who conducted a department store as well, WPAW [illegible] Mr. Gillis. One [illegible] envelope slid [illegible] door. It was [illegible] to midnight [illegible] read [illegible] and Shottenberg must get [illegible] K. K. K. Whether [illegible] was the problem [illegible] visibly perturbed [illegible]. But not for long [illegible] a plan.

[illegible] and radio next morning [illegible] the air [illegible] special attention of Ku Klux Klan members. Attention was called to a drastic reduction of beets and pillow cases at Shottenberg's. Even Klux's enjoy [illegible] and courage.

Vincent Lopez, veteran bandman [illegible] to recall the [illegible] to New York, [illegible] townsfolk as a budding genius in the then prosperous song writing realm. Lopez [illegible] the young man's writing [illegible] the truth. He [illegible] a return to the small city and the deserted bank clerk's desk. Ten years have come and gone. Today that same youth is cashier in the flourishing bank back home, while the song scribbler who wrote the season's big hit of 1920, is now broke.

THOSE WEREN'T THE DAYS

Amos 'n' Andy, known off the mike as Correll and Gosden, cherish the memory of countless nights when they performed for "apples" through WEBH in Chicago as Sam and Henry.

Ted Husing [illegible] a lusty guffaw as he [illegible] days. The Boston Transcript gave him air following a wise crack he made while broadcasting a ball game here through WBET [illegible] changed to WLEX, again [illegible] recently into WAAB.

Among others who gaze in retrospect on early careers in Boston are [illegible] Alwyn Bach and John W. H[illegible], at present regarded [illegible] NBC as top notch announcers on [illegible] coast networks. [illegible] served here under John Clark, still the man to see at WBZ.

HE DROVE TO DOVER

Ed (WAAB) Young, known as "The Yankee Philosopher," goes back beyond the beginning of sound transmission for his fondest recollections. Those were when he attended one night's stands of Gladys Clark and her stock company. He used to get 30 cents from his Dad so he could sit with the "high class" folks in the City Opera House at Dover, New Hampshire. Whereupon he proceeded to purchase a [illegible] in the gallery. Perched there he could eat peanuts [illegible] and hiss the villain. [illegible] a reverse [illegible] of 20 years [illegible] obsolete calendars.

Bill Whipple [illegible] guards a [illegible] of his experience at old WEAF on lower Broadway, New York. Bill still basks [illegible] of his first meeting with that very business like fair one, Bertha Brainerd. Miss Brainerd negotiated his initial bits of [illegible] scenes of which were laid [illegible] Sweet Meddors, down Maine.

John [illegible], at present [illegible] for NBC, will never forget the first newspaper [illegible] "Tell me for [illegible] information. I won't print [illegible]" many years ago at [illegible].

JUST HOLLYWOOD

"Variety without which few columnists could live a week add this classic to the many stories of movie temperament

A stage player was called for a part in a new talkie. The supervisor gave him the script and had him read the part he was being considered for. When he had done so the supervisor said

"You sound all right to me. I'll o. k. you but now you must see the director."

The actor then went to the director, a man noted for his moodiness. The actor read the part for him

"Is it all right?" he asked the director when he had finished.

"Not yet," said the director. "Would you come back tomorrow and read it again, wearing a grey suit?"

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

"When Your Boy Becomes A Man" ... the hit song of "Free For All" at the Colonial and wise ones around the theater are calling it the "Bar Mitzvah song" ... Howard Marsh, who has been taking a short vacation from the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in New York, was in town Monday night to see "Free For All" ... Isaac Goldberg, well known Roxbury author, has finished his biography of George Gershwin and is vacationing at Rockport ... The new Gershwin book will be on the book shelves soon ... Until a California court legalized the change the other day, Stan Laurel's legal name was Stanley Arthur Jefferson ... And, speaking of names, Ethel ("Girl Crazy") Merman's real monicker is Ethel Zimmerman ... Now they're saying that Ruth Chatterton will tear up her Warner Brothers contract and stay on with Paramount ... Dorothy Stone will not be with her dad Fred Stone, in the new Shubert show in which he will be starred this season ... Dorothy and her dancing partner, who were here at the Keith-Boston a couple of weeks ago, are under contract to appear at the Palladium in London this fall ... But Dorothy's sister, Paula will be with her dad ... The Marx Brothers have gone into Heywood Broun's co-operative revue, "Shoot the Works," and the grosses are soaring ... Ernie Grenier, Colonial treasurer, did his bit to help Bill Landrigan and the Mrs. celebrate their seventh wedding anniversary by leading Leo Reisman's band at the Cascades Roof Monday night ... Benny Rubin's contract hasn't been renewed by Pathe ... And M-G-M are through with William Haines as a star as soon as his present contract expires ... They won't renew Leslie Howard's contract either ... Do you remember when Leo Reisman made his debut (in short pants) at the Bijou Theater when he was 14? ... All you could see was hair and a violin ... Dr. Max Tennis postcards "wish you were here" greetings to us from Jerusalem ... And Frank McGrann, on the Coast with Ethel Barrymore sends his regards to Boston from Movieland ... Alexander Woollcott - probably jealous of Heywood Broun—has a vent ... act in the road tour of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" ... And just to prove that he's a jack-of-all-trades, he wants to act as press agent for the tour also ... Up in Old Orchard, when an auto from another state violates a traffic ordinance, the offending car is tagged and when the tag is brought to the police station, the motorist is let off with a gentle chiding ... BUT just as he's about to leave he's asked if he woudn't like to buy a ticket to the hall for the benefit of the Policemen's Fund at a dollar a copy ... When you get on a trolley and sit down and the passenger in the seat snickers at something he is reading in the paper and you look over his shoulder and it's YOUR stuff he's reading—oh boy, is THAT a grand and glorious feeling ??? ... Well ... the success of the project to boost the Port of Boston is now assured. The Port of Boston Society has been formed and they've got a booster's song, sung to the tune of "Over There," and everything. This department has spent the better part of the day hotly denying that Kate Smith's parrot, Al, is named after us as that little runt of an office boy who wrote N. F. T's column today so slyly insinuated ... It's a base canard and when we get the little so-and-so we'll wring his neck

LEGION DELEGATES

Two employes of the municipal employment bureau are delegates to the annual American Legion state convention which opened at Plymouth today. They are Peter McDonald who represents Yankee Division Post and Roy Dasher delegate from South End Post. Roy was recently elected commander of that post

RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

Joseph Carroll of 62 St. Rose st Jamaica Plain, has been appointed a rodman in the sewer division of the public works department by Mayor Curley

TOKEN OF APPRECIATION

Bill Anderson assistant secretary to Mayor Curley has been presented a beautiful engraved fountain pen set by the Hyde Park Board of Trade. The presentation was intended as a slight token of their appreciation for his efforts to raise funds for the erection of a memorial tablet to the men of that district who served in the Civil War. The tablet will be dedicated at Memorial Park on Sept 27

LEARY ON VACATION

City Messenger "Ned" Leary is now vacationing at Bangor, Maine

CEMENT TESTER

Mayor Curley has appointed K. Berry of 180 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, cement tester in the sewer division of the public works department

APPOINTED METER READERS

James E. Sullivan of Clarendon st Dorchester and Gerald A. Barry, 15 Cameron st, also of that district have been appointed water meter readers in the water division of the public works department by Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke.

RAY ENJOYS JOKE

With great gusto the story is being told at the State House of the motorist severely reprimanded by the judge for not giving a hand signal when making a right turn, thereby causing an accident. "When asked why he did not stick out his hand," the story continues "the motorist replied that he was afraid that Tom Ray, the governor's messenger would see it and insist on shaking it." Probably no one enjoys the joke more than Ray himself

REP GAROFANO RETURNS

Rep Tony A. Garofano of Saugus, who drives as good a car as there is on the road, has just returned with his family from an extended trip in Canada

—STATE ST.—

Hears:

That the selectivity of the list is typical of the transition from bear to bull market. Confusion caused by the strength of oil and store shares while motors and rail equities are under pressure, is looked on as a signal that improvement is gradually spreading. Need less to say if all groups were reporting themselves in good shape the bear market would long since been a thing of the past

Southern Pacific

At the risk of repetition brokers are reminding traders that the rails usually enjoy a marked increase in business at this time of the year. In this connection they point out the rather surprising action of the Southern Pacific directors in declaring the usual dividend when the "Street" was prepared for a cut of two or three dollars

From experienced observers the financial community hears that it has been in the dumps so long that it has forgotten just what an accumulating market looks like. Also the district is reminded of the small profits that accrue to those who are stubborn enough to fight rallies even though their sell no takes place on intermediary ... points

Chrysler

The pool in Chrysler is not sewed up. Far from it according to those who reduced long holdings above 24. Instead of following wild rumors of distress in this equity it would be better to take on a line of stock and play along with a group which is reputed to have made a pretty turn and is now ready to trap the unwary short

While nothing tangible has been made known concerning the return of India to a silver standard this is expected to be the next most important development in world affairs. There can be no doubt of India's importance as a consumer country and any effort to place it on a better footing should find a favorable reception in the world's money centers

Petroleum Corp.

Petroleum Corporation is an ideal speculation for those who are in a quandary as to what oil stock they should take on. It is an investment trust specializing in the common stocks of oil and natural gas properties. It also holds just under 20 000 shares of United Corp. At current levels its principal holdings have an approximate value of $10 per share

BULL MARKET IN THE OILS ACTS WELL

By FRANK H. MELOON

The bull market in the oil shares is acting very well. Aug 4 appears to mark the turn. Since then advances ranging from 2 to a dozen points have been scored by most of the leading petroleum issues. The action of the chief executives of Texas and Oklahoma, originally laughed at by most observers as mere political gestures, have been the main factors responsible for the advance. It must be conceded that pool operators in the financial canyon, have taken advantage of the situation to mark up for the familiar "jiggle" a few no-account oil shares here and there

• • •

The average investor or speculator will do well to walk warily, and stick to prominent shares, whether in the oils or elsewhere. Around current levels this policy in the long run is bound to pay best

• • •

President Gage P. Wright of the Business Economic Digest, Inc tells us

Gage P. Wright

"The belief prevails that, with basic industrial conditions so favorable to recovery, a natural rebound from current depressed levels is inevitable."

• • •

"Proposal of the Federal Farm Board that planters plow under every third row of cotton to reduce the size of the crop, is regarded as impossible of fulfillment by every economist whose opinion has come to our attention. Aside from the academic question of the theoretical soundness of the plan (economic theory teaches that wealth cannot be created by destruction of wealth), it is pointed out that the large majority of planters will let the other fellow do the plowing under, with the obvious result that the reduction of the crop will be very small," says Mr. Wright.

• • •

Investment trusts show up better than the general market for the initial half of the year. Standard Statistics' analysis of mid-year statements of reporting general management investment trusts discloses that a representative number of these units made relatively satisfactory progress during the first half of 1931

"On the average," the survey states, "the decline in net assets of the trusts studied was 1.8 per cent during the term, as compared with a decline of 3.3 per cent in our stock market index"

• • •

Hot weather helps the ice companies. Like American Ice's, the earnings of City Ice & Fuel Co. in July reflected the influence of high temperatures throughout considerable of its territory. The company handled a record volume in the month. Consequently, net profit for the month exceeded that of July, 1930, by more than $100,000. In July, last year, net profit was $1,374 010, comparing with $1 196 678 in the 1929 month

• • •

With the world's leading economists and government heads apparently powerless to avert price collapses in necessities the action of the Governors of Texas and Oklahoma stands out in sharp contrast. Where it will lead no one knows, but the results to date have been gratifying to oil leaders, speculators and investors, of whom there are several millions

• • •

Now that he is off the Farm board, Samuel R. McKelvie, former "wheat member," suggests that this body's 200 000,000-bushel surplus be used for food relief. In France a government "tariff" lifts the price of wheat three times what it sells for in the Chicago pit.

Dividends

Boston & Albany railroad declared usual quarterly dividend of $2, due at this time, payable September 30 to stock of record August 31

• • •

National Bond & Share Corporation declared a dividend of 25 cents payable September 15 to stock of record August 31

• • •

Hudson Motor Car Co declared a dividend of 25 cents, payable October 1 to stock of record September 11. This is the same as paid in the two previous quarters

Republic Steel's Warren Mill Open

New York, Aug 20 (AP) Republic Steel Corp. has started its strip mill at Warren, O, operating at 35 to 40 per cent of capacity after a week of idleness. Next week it will operate its tin plate mills, now idle

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Standard and independent oils today reached the best levels on the present movement, behind the impulus of further improvement in crude and refined oil prices, in line with forecasts made here

After such a rapid advance as the oils have had, extensive profit taking would normally be expected yet it must be conceded that conditions in the industry are too exact opposite of normal

Sinclair Is Among Most Active Oils

Sinclair was among the most active oils once again today. Buying was stimulated by reports that negotiations for consolidation of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corp, Prairie Oil & Gas Co., Prairie Pipe Line Co, Tidewater Associated Oil Co and Rio Grande Oil Co. into one large holding company, probably to be known as the Commonwealth Oil Corp., are in the final stages

Jersey Standard Is Up to a New High

Standard Oil of New Jersey today moved up to a new high, completing a six-point rise since last Thursday. Jersey Standard was picked here weeks ago as the logical leader of any upswing in the oils

Very Satisfactory Business Reported

President E. C. Blum of Abraham & Straus, declaring initial dividend, reported business as quite satisfactory with unit sales ahead of last year's. The chains have been doing well in general, and this accounts for the action of the leaders. J. C. Penney today in one flurry of buying quickly moved up about 2 points

General Foods Has Increase in Sales

General Foods continues to creep up steadily from its 1931 low. Company's Canadian subsidiary today reported bulk sales about 6 per cent ahead of those for the like period last year

Texas Is Payer About 31 Years

Texas Corp. was one of the first oil stocks to pass over its June high. The stock has been quite highly regarded by investors in the past because of the regular dividends which have been paid for a period of about 31 years. Some months ago liquidation developed because of the knowledge of sharply reduced earnings but more recently the stock has been attracting a speculative element on the theory that it will be one of the chief beneficiaries from the curtailment of production and possibilities of higher crude prices

Watchful Waiting Market Attitude

In much of the market today there was an attitude of watchful waiting. Outcome of the Wiggin committee studies recommending downward revision of Germany's reparations was rather in line with banking sentiment as already expressed. Although this step has always been highly distasteful to important elements in the United States, the best-informed market observers have always proclaimed such action as necessarily preliminary to active resumption of bullishness by the leading bankers

PRICES WORKED HIGHER IN BOSTON

Stocks changed hands in small trading as prices worked higher on the Boston Stock Exchange today. New England Telephone was the feature issue gaining 2½ points to a new high mark for the year

Edison jumped 5 points on one sale, Mergenthaler advanced 2 and Stone & Webster was up 1½. Rails were strong with Boston & Albany up 1⅞ and Atchison and Pennsylvania up fractionally

Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred gained 1 and Utility Equity preferred scored a point gained. Fractional gains were made by American Telephone, American Woolen preferred and First National Stores

A new low for the year was made by South Surety being off

Borden Mills large New England textile operators at Kingsport, Tenn., resumed operations on the night shift this week. For the past several months the mills have been running only on day shift

Directors of International Silver Co voted to close down Holmes & Edwards plant at Bridgeport. The plant will not be closed down entirely this year on account of the Christmas articles but all work there will be suspended shortly after the first of the year

This plan is part of a general program to concentrate all plant activities within a small radius of the general offices in Meriden. All work formerly done in Bridgeport plant will be distributed among Waterbury, Meriden and Wallingford plants

—SPECTATOR—

Says:

A more cautious attitude is noticeable in speculative circles. The bulls will probably try to give stocks another whirl. Oil and rail shares bear watching. However, it would be well to watch your step

The Coppers

Quiet selling has been renewed in the coppers on every bulge. The reasons are the same old trouble of the industry, too much copper above ground and lagging sales with the precedent that the copper industry is usually the last to turn up in any depression. In addition, while most copper companies have already cut their dividends, the present rates cannot be regarded as secure until they start making some money

Bullish enthusiasm about Chrysler has cooled quite a bit and there is a tendency to wait and see how the general business situation works out

Royal Dutch

Poor action of Royal Dutch was curious in view of the comparative strength in the rest of the oils. Royal Dutch is now flirting with its low for the year while the rest of the petroleum list is showing a wide clearance. The stock has been under persistent pressure for some time indicating uncompleted necessitous liquidation

The Case crowd, it is understood, plans to pick up the stock on any further sell-off from these levels and will try to give it "the works" again. The basis for the move, 'tis said, is that they weren't able to get out of all their stock in recent bulges

U. S. Steel

U. S. Steel seems to have a thorny road ahead market-wise and it is difficult to see how this one-time bellwether is going to do anything spectacular. The expected increase in steel business this fall will have to be far greater than seasonal for any of the steel companies to make any money. Some are going to consider that they have done well if they cover preferred dividend requirements for the year. Obviously 1931 isn't going to rank as a steel year.

Some buying came into Allied Chemical for the account of the group running the market in the stock. They hope to be able to take Allied up again when things turn

Here and There

Talk is that either the oils or the rails will be dressed up to lead further upswings. The former have the news in their favor ... It will take another sharp sell-off to bring good buying into Johns-Manville. There is quite a strong crowd in Electric Power & Light ... One group long familiar with General Motors isn't following the present move it is said ... Columbian Carbon will have to do a lot better than in the first half to justify even current prices, much less a sharp rise

Bond Market Has Irregular Change

New York, Aug. 20—Dull trading and narrow irregular changes were principal features of the bond market today. Foreign obligations were most active. German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of October, 1960 dropped about a point. The bulk of all changes in the foreign issues most of which were declines were minor fractions. German 5½s and 7s were so affected on moderate activity

Int. Paper Profit for Half Year Up

New York, Aug 20 (AP)—International Paper & Power Co. today reported for the first half net income of $1,606,997, compared with $1,271,111 in the corresponding period of last year. For the June quarter net income was 1,013 436, against $601,056 in the June quarter of 1930

Commonwealth Pete Is on Chicago Curb

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Chicago Curb Exchange has admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis shares of the Commonwealth Petroleum Corp., the merger of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corp., Prairie Oil & Gas Co., Prairie Pipe Line., Tidewater Associated Oil Co., and Rio Grande Oil Co. First sale was at 12⅝

Perfect Circle Co. Has Large Prof

Chicago, Aug 20—Perfect Circle Co for seven months ended July 31 1931, reports net profit of $586,579 after charges and taxes equivalent to $3.60 a share on 162,500 no-par shares of capital stock, against $430,019, or $2.64 a share on same number shares in like period 1930

STOCKS HIGHER ON THIRD DAY OF UPTURN

New York, Aug. 20—For the third successive session, bulls were able to make substantial progress during this morning in Wall St., only to stall in a mire of liquidation around midday.

The afternoon, however, saw the leaders most retaining a portion of their earlier gains.

PUBLIC APATHETIC

Public apathy and a soggy bond market have made forward progress difficult. Constructive interests, however, have been encouraged by the developments in the petroleum situation, and the absence of important liquidation on declines.

The midday setback today was less severe than those recently encountered, and Consolidated Gas, Case, Lambert, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Eastman, Atchison and Union Pacific were 1 to 3 higher. U. S. Steel gained nearly 2.

In the oils Tidewater preferred gained more than 5 points. In the main, however, the advance was all but halted in the oils, save for the Tidewater issues, which were helped by early expectations of completion of the long projected Sinclair merger.

TAXES HURT TOBACCOS.

The downturn in the tobacco shares was regarded in some brokerage circles as reflecting bear selling and shifting of other groups on the theory that the improvement in the tobacco industry since the increase in wholesale prices had been more than discounted by the market, and that the outlook was a little less rosy with the Government about to investigate the price jump, competition increasing and states imposing new taxes.

The breathing spell in the oil shares evidently reflected profit-taking, and a desire on the part of traders to learn more about how the Texas and Oklahoma shutdowns will affect various companies before increasing their commitments.

As a measure of the recent upturn in oils, the market value of the assets of Petroleum Corp. of America, largest oil and utility investment trusts, has increased from about $10 per share at the start of June to about $13.50 a share currently. Much of its holdings, however, are in Prairie, which is an important factor in the Sinclair merger.

Electrical Power Output Decreases

Power output of the electrical subsidiaries of American Water Works & Electric Co. for July were 142,126,919 k. w. h., against 150,049,697 k. w. h. for the same month of 1930.

In seven months ended July 21 power output was 1,015,809,583 k. w. h., against 1,109,569,850 k. w. h. in the 1930 period.

Advance in Food Prices is Noted

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—Although farm prices in July dropped three-fourths of one per cent below June, retail food prices in 51 cities increased one-half of one per cent. The labor department, announcing the price trends today, said, however, that July's retail food costs were 17½ per cent less than in July a year ago.

Indiana Standard Holders Increase

Standard Oil Company of Indiana now has 95,136 stockholders of whom 19,059 reside in Illinois, it was announced yesterday.

When the company became a separate organization, 20 years ago, stockholders then totaled 6078, it was stated.

Associated Oil Co. Net 48 Cents Share

New York, Aug. 20—Associated Oil Co. reports for half year ended June 30 net profit of $1,111,308, equal to 48 cents a share on the 2,290,412 shares, against $3,264,855, or $1.42 a share, in the first half of 1930.

U. S. Motor Gasoline Advanced to 6 Cents

Warner-Quinlan Co., effective today, has advanced U. S. motor gasoline in tank cars and barges at the company's New Jersey refineries one cent to six cents a gallon.

LAZARUS & CO. PAY INITIAL

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—F. & R. Lazarus & Co. of Columbus, O., have declared an initial quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share on the common stock, payable September 30 to stockholders of record September 21.

F. & R. Lazarus & Co. is the third of the subsidiaries of Federated Department Stores, Inc., to place its common stock on a dividend basis this week.

Federated was formed in 1929 as a merger of the Lazarus Store with Filene's of Boston, Bloomingdales of New York and Abraham & Straus of Brooklyn. Both Filene's and Abraham & Straus have put their common stocks on a dividend basis this week.

Initiation of dividends at a time when dividends are widely being slashed or completely omitted was regarded in Wall Street as reflecting reviving activity in trade in certain sections and the success with which large merchandising organizations have been able to adjust their inventories and costs to new conditions.

Hallgarten Survey Is Hopeful on Oil

Hallgarten & Co. have just prepared an analytical survey and history of the petroleum industry, covering every phase of the situation. In its discussion of the outlook, it concludes:

"The immediate outlook seems to be for an early restoration of a proper balance in the industry, with every prospect for a profitable year in 1932."

Kelly Tire Shows Net Loss in Half

Operations of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for the six months' period ended June 30, 1931, as outlined in a statement by W. H. Lalley, president, showed a profit of $116,855 after all charges but before deduction for depreciation. After deducting depreciation of $308,291, a net loss of $281,436 resulted.

Maine Is Seeking $2,000,000 Loan

Bids for State of Maine $2,000,000 3½ per cent highway and bridge bonds will be received until 10 a. m., August 26. Southampton received no bids for $58,000 4 per cent water bonds dated September 1, and payable 1933 to 1961.

Printing & Litho. Co. Shows Net Loss

U. S. Printing & Lithograph Co. for the six months ended June 30 reports a net loss of $54,265 after depreciation and interest on serial bonds. Current assets on June 30 were $2,675,614 and current liabilities $1,199,828.

Metro. Edison Shows Income of $3,171,445

Palmer Gets Lowest Bond Bid From Bank

Palmer has awarded to First National-Old Colony Corp. at 1.76 per cent, $100,000 loan dated Aug. 21, and maturing Dec. 30. Other bidder was F. S. Moseley & Co., 1.90 per cent, interest to follow.

CONTAINER CORP.

O. W. P., Waltham—Please give me some data on Container Corp. Enclosed is a list of my present holdings. Would you suggest any change?

Ans.—We would not suggest any change at this time.

Container Corp is the largest manufacturer in the country of paper shipping containers and cartons, and also produces liner, chip and straw board in bulk form, as well as folding boxes and related products. Last year the company introduced corrugated colored paper boxes which enable shipping containers to be used as display cartons. Profits have been following a downward course since 1927. An 88 per cents decline last year resulted in a deficit of $0.12 per class A share, as against earnings of $1.20 a share in 1929 and $1.44 in 1928.

According to Standard Statistics, operations are believed to have remained at an unsatisfactory level so far this year.

A deficit of $0.65 on the "A" stock for the first half of 1931 compared with a profit of $0.64 a share in the similar period a year ago. Declining prices and narrowing profit margins have offset the benefits of cost reduction programs. Intense competition remains a chief unsettling factor in the paperboard industry, and the tendency to increase productive capacity has not been halted. In view of the recent omission of the quarterly dividend on the preferred issue, distribution on the class A shares appears remote. Financial condition at the end of 1930 was only fair.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM CO.

L. L. W., Roslindale—What are the prospects for United States Gypsum Co.? Please give me a short report on the company.

Ans.—We do not make a practice of guessing future prices. You must make the decision.

United States Gypsum is a leading manufacturer of gypsum products, including numerous classes of plaster, wallboard, exterior sheathing and stucco, fireproof partitions, insulation, tile (roof, floor, partition and acoustical) and sound insulation systems, in addition to plastic paints, hydrated lime, wood board and metal lath.

The trend of business usually corresponds with the level of residential building contracts awarded, but with a lag of several weeks to a few months. It has lowered production and marketing costs in recent years through the construction of new plants in strategic locations, and is the lowest cost producer in its field.

The major portion of its expansion program was completed last year through the acquisition of some half dozen important concerns, and special attention now is being directed to research, correlation of interests and the introduction of such economies as will not lower efficiency.

The decline of profits was arrested in 1929, after four years of unsettlement caused by price wars, and a slight improvement was registered by common share earnings of $4.01 in 1930, against $3.98 in the preceding 12 months. Sales have been smaller this year, both in tonnage and value, than they were in 1930, reflecting further slackening of demand from builders, says Shattuck Statistics. Despite fairly firm prices for products and the widening of profit margins through the practise of economies, earnings for 1931 are expected to decline.

The regular dividend at a rate of $1.60 per annum should be covered by a good margin, however, and it is our preliminary estimate that around $3 a share will be reported. Financial condition remains strong.

SEVERAL STOCKS

Mrs. J. J., Somerville—Please give your opinion on my shares as follows: Twenty shares each Standard Oil of New Jersey and Standard Oil of New York, ten each General Motors, Loose-Wiles Biscuit and Public Service of New Jersey.

Ans.—Earnings on Loose-Wiles Biscuit and Public Service of New Jersey warrant the assumption the current dividend rates are in no immediate danger. Net of $1.65 a share last year covered the regular $1 annual rate on Standard Oil of New Jersey but did not make allowance for extras. Since second quarter of 1929 stockholders have received 25 cents a share extra. Earnings of 92 cents a share in 1930 on Standard Oil of New York fell short of dividend requirements of $1.60. Net for 1929 was $2.23 a share. General Motors earned $1.83 a share for the six months ended June 30, against dividend needs of $1.50 for that period. Net in full year 1930 was $3.25 a share and in 1929, $5.49. Current $3 rate has been maintained on the present stock from March, 1929. In the long run dividend distributions depend solely on earnings.

CITIES SERVICE GAINS ON CURB

New York, Aug. 20—The curb market turned soggy after a morning upturn today. Cities Service was active and firm, up to a new high on the move, following issuance of its July earnings report. Net profit of $1,235,082 was shown in that month when numerous oils operated at a loss.

Trading was extremely dull, and moderate advances in several of the oils and utilities were largely lost by early afternoon.

Gulf pushed up more than a point, then lost most of its gain. Humble sold up a point, then quickly fell back. Indiana failed to make headway.

There was considerable activity in some of the low-priced natural gas issues, particularly Appalachain and Arkansas, but they moved narrowly.

In the utilities, American Gas & Electric sold up nearly two points at its best. Electric Bond & Share held fairly firm. United light sagged a fraction, then recovered. Aluminum Co. continued to move widely, advancing about five points.

United Traction Co. Reports a Deficit

The statement of the receivers of the United Traction Company for the first six months of the calendar year 1931 as compared with the same period in 1920 shows a decline in total revenue to $1,013,380 from $1,192,796.

After interest requirements aggregating $153,537, on secured obligations, there was a deficit of $113,274 for the six months period ended June 30, 1931.

Pere Marquette's Deficit Is $308,359

Pere Marquette Railway in July showed a gross income of $2,253,558, as compared with $3,182,672 in July, 1930. Net operating deficit was $25,736, as against an income of $536,388 last year, while the deficit after charges was $308,359, as against a surplus of $321,563 in the prevoius year.

Bank of England's Reserve Increased

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—Weekly statement of the Bank of England showed the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 7,488,000; circulation decreased 5,922,000; bullion increased 1,556,000; other securities increased 6,001,000; public deposits decreased 292,000; other deposits increased 8,812,000.

London Exchange is To Open Saturdays

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—The governing committee decided today to open the stock exchange on Saturdays commencing September 19 "in view of the situation in the country and the desirability of affording facilities for dealing." It has been closed Saturdays since war days.

United Gas Earns 30c Share in Year

Report of United Gas Corporation including voting controlled companies for the 12 months ended June 30 shows earnings applicable to its common stock of $2,189,878. This is equivalent to 30 cents a share on 7,217,143 no par shares of common stock outstanding.

Vulcan Detining's Net Income $72,434

Net income of Vulcan Detinning Co. for the quarter ended June 30 was $72,434, equal after dividends on 17,996 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock outstanding at the end of the quarter to $1.27 a share on 32,258 common shares.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Record breaking speed from the Britian West Indies and Bermuda is being made by the steamer Lady Drake, one of the regulars in the Canadian National Steamship Line direct Boston and West Indies service. She is expected at Commonwealth Pier today, twenty-four hours ahead of her regular schedule.

Making Boston, St. John, N. B., and Halifax, N. S., she will return from Halifax to Boston in four days, which is the quickest on record.

She was pressed to full speed enroute in order to meet the schedule of the Lady Hawkins, now under repairs at St. John, N. B., which grounded recently.

Landing 75 Boston passengers she will be again pressed on her way to St. John and Halifax, where her cargo will be unloaded. Extra longshoremen will be on hand at each port in the Maritime Provinces to unload her cargo as speedily as possible.

She will be on her way back to Boston from Halifax Saturday at midnight, docking here Monday morning on the way to the West Indies.

BRUNO DOCKED

Mid-week sailing of the United Fruit Co. steamer San Bruno to Pueryo Castilla is postponed, as she was placed out of commission and taken across the harbor to a berth at Federal Wharf, where she will be tied up until repaired, Capt. Herbert Friswold of Everett, commander, has been transferred to the steamer Sixaola, out of New York.

BERTHS SET

Mystic Docks, Charlestown, will offer berthing space to the steamers operating in the east, direct connection being made by the port of Boston and ports in Germany and Central Europe. The Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Line freight service have combined to make this possible. The ships will dock at the end of Piers 46 and 47. The service will be maintained as long as New England business supports it. Running time will be 14 days to Hamburg and 16 to Bremen.

This Would Disgust Russia

But Russia May Live to See It, as the United States Sees It Now

A YOUTHFUL BRITISH COMMONER, MASTER HEADLY, MAKES A PROUD BOW TO ROYALTY AFTER PRESENTING A PURSE

The lady with the big white hat is the charming Duchess of York, daughter-in-law of King George, who goes everywhere, making herself agreeable, encouraging charity.

The little boy, doing his best to make what some American children would call "a perfectly swell bow," has just handed to the Duchess a purse full of money to help the "Royal Medical Benevolent Fund Guild."

The picture is amusing, but it would probably annoy some of our good friends in Russia. Over there, where they have just discovered "freedom," everybody is the equal of everybody else, with the possible exception of Stalin.

He can have you shot by merely pointing at you, and that is not exactly equality.

But even Russia, inebriated with its first wild drink of freedom, may come to the bowing and scraping once more, as in the days of Czars.

You start out to have all men equal, and then you suddenly discover that inequalities are not due so much to the arrogance of the upper class as to the inborn SERVILITY OF OTHER CLASSES.

Americans may laugh at this little British son of the Common People bending himself double in the presence of Royalty.

But if that same royalty came to the United States, land of glorious freedom, you would see ducking and bowing, and scraping, multiplied "curtsies," pitiful, lickspittle snobbishness, in some of our finest houses, such as was never dreamed of in England.

The Duchess, very polite, would not laugh, but NOT laughing would require an effort.

And she would tell about it when she got home as other titled travelers have done.

It was one thing for Jefferson to write that men are equal in the Declaration of Independence. It is another thing for Americans to believe it. And they don't.

In fact, THEY KNOW that THEY are not equal.

To Keep Amused

Close to 116,000,000,000 cigarettes were smoked up in this land during the fiscal year just closed. It would take an Einstein to figure out how many packs that would make. And also how many cigars and canisters of shag and plug cut were consumed on the side.

The cigarette is ubiquitous, but to many devotees of the weed, as Robert C. Holliday said, "Cigarettes are all right when a fellow isn't smoking."

The American, we are told, sticks to his habits despite the depression. So does the rest of the human race, where tobacco is concerned. In "Man's Own Show: Civilization," the late Professor Dorsey, looking over things as they are, stated that tobacco is "the world's greatest maker of peace, tranquility, comfort and happiness."

The point is that since the slump we drink more coffee, buy more playing cards, drink as much pop, eat as much candy and see almost as many movies as we did before. The three billion dollars we spend on these things help balance the loss in other directions.

"Sweet Singer" Passes

Denis A. McCarthy is dead.

For a long time he was one of Boston's most popular poets. Who has not felt the charm of that melody, "Ah, Sweet Is Tipperary," or the lyric, "A Bit of the Brogue." He declared in his poem "This is the Land Where Hate Should Die."

He enriched occasions with his wit and humor and the trail of his light will long linger in Boston.

In London

London Flower Girls

LONDON, Aug. 20—Nothing perhaps adds such a cheerful chirrup to London as its flower girls, street characters rapidly vanishing since the war. All are called "girls" yet most are women past middle age, swathed in plaid shawls and wearing bobbing straw bonnets.

They address one as "Dearie" and before they can he stopped slip a flower into a lapel. Flower girls are often descendants of grandmothers who button-holed dandies along Pall Mall in Victorian days. They are the first of London's curb hawkers to arise and last to retire.

I enjoy, too, watching sidewalk artists—known as "screevers"—who tack canvases on building walls and parapets to sketch, sometimes in charcoal and sometimes in water colors. Nothing pleases them so much as to collect a little knot of watchers.

It is then they "show off," indulging in bold sweeps and quick strokes with graceful flourishes. They stand off, cocking their heads this way and that for perspectives but if the crowd moves off they immediately droop on a camp stool and roll a cigarette. "Screevers" only labor when watched.

Just now unemployment has forced many jobless to unusual stunts to attract attention to their plight. Turning down the Embankment today was a figure moving on all fours. Closer a card pinned on his back read: "Give me a job so I can stand up and face the world like a man!"

Then there is the waggish fellow who could double for Jack Pearl and holds forth near Covent Garden holding in outstretched arms a detached pair of handlebars. A card in his cap does not ask alms. It merely reads: "What is left of my bicycle!"

* * *

A telegram—I love to unfold them here—at my hotel invites me to watch the "sculling on the Thames" tomorrow. It starts at 6 a. m. and I wouldn't get up that early to look at the fastest scullion in England.

* * *

In some ways London is one of the best governed cities in the world. Traffic is more expertly regulated than in New York, quite a city, too, or Paris, shown by the small number of automobile fatalities. A long resident tells me that he never saw a street fight—the penalties are too severe. The pickpocket is a rarity. A large percentage of fine London mansions are unlocked at night. Holdups are uncommon.

* * *

Every newspaperman the world over hopes some day to see New York's Park Row and London's Fleet Street—the best advertised newspaper rows of all. Fleet Street is a short, narrow thoroughfare running down a sharp hill to Ludgate Circus. It is liveliest around 5 a. m. when presses are roaring with the final editions for London and provincial England. Reporters are journalists and look it. Monocles are not infrequent and canes are as much a fixture as the vest pocket lead pencil. Secretaries for star journalists make their engagements. Scribes here lack the accustomed blood current. There are ex-American reporters in Fleet Street. Also a managing editor and a sprinkling of sub editors. Most I have met "go native" with a broad A and morning coat in a jiffy. One today who has only been here 18 months has already given "while" the bum's rush for "whilst."

* * *

This afternoon I was introduced to a recent diversion in London's social life called "slufting." Around tea tables one is given a pad and pencil and quotations are read from classical books. The one identifying the most authors wins the prize—all higher intelligentsia. I had no idea of being so good. I may give a sluff recital at Carnegie this fall.

I dropped into a nursing home—how much softer than the word hospital—to see Lawrence O'Orsay, British "silly ass" actor, well known to Broadway, who has been gravely ill. It was too late to be admitted but I was told he was slowly recovering.

From a hotel column in the Evening Standard: "Mr. McIntyre is of the ilk of drawling, out-west Americans who feigns indifference at such British sports as cricket and rugby."

You got me that time, podner!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Faith Without Work

ONCE UPON a time, John Burroughs wrote a poem called "WAITING." The first verse went like this:

"Serene, I fold my hands and wait,
Nor care for wind, or tide, or sea;
I rave no more gainst time or fate,
For, lo! my own shall come to me."

And the last verse went like this:

"The stars come nightly to the sky;
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me."

Elsie Robinson

Every little while someone sends me that poem. During these last difficult months it has arrived much more frequently, always accompanied by this statement: "Isn't it beautiful, Elsie? This is how I'm trying to live my life."

And every time I read that poem and hear that statement I get a violent pain in the neck.

Waiting . . . waiting quietly and confidently . . . it's a brave and wise thing to do, WHEN YOU CAN'T DO ANYTHING ELSE.

Faith . . . there's tremendous power in faith. It will move mountains. BUT IT WON'T MOVE THEM ALONE.

You've got to do more than wait before your "own will come" to you. You must have more than faith to move mountains. FAITH WITHOUT WORK IS A FLOP. YOU'VE GOT TO SHOW ACTION.

"The stars (croons J. B.) come nightly to the sky.
The tidal wave unto the sea;
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me."

Your own stupidity——
Your own cowardice——
Your own laziness——
Your own conceit, dishonesty, silly sentimentality, and peevishness—all these things can keep your own away from you. And if you think that God is going to get big-hearted and rescue and reward you, in spite of these handicaps, you're just out of luck.

As a matter of fact, you have no "own" until you earn it.

Often you hear a man say—"I'm entitled to a job. The world owes me a living——"

All of these are blessed things to have, but they will not come to you automatically. And if, by good fortune, the chance to possess them comes your way, that chance will do you no good unless, by your own determination and hard work, you turn it to your advantage.

Don't go around expecting luck . . . insisting on your right to happiness . . . wasting your time in self pity and resentment if you are unlucky, unhappy. It's as much up to you to make your own luck, your own happiness, as it is to brush your own teeth.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

Do you know:

1. What famous American naval captain said, "I have not yet begun to fight," although his ship was badly damaged?
2. Where is Winston-Salem?
3. What do the red and white stripes on a barber's pole signify?
4. What theatrical producer is known for "glorifying the American girl"?
5. Who wrote the opera "Pelleas and Melisande"?

Fill each blank:

6. The faintly marked letter, figure or design seen on paper when held to the light is called the ———
7. ——— holds the place in Great Britain given to baseball in U. S.
8. The institution offering training on the level of the first two college years is known as the ———
9. The most destructive insect which attacks the cotton plant is ———.

Answers to today's test:

1. John Paul Jones. 2. A twin city in North Carolina. 3. Barbers once practiced bleeding and leeching; hence, red, blood; white, bandages. 4. Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr. 5. Claude Debussy. 6. Watermark. 7. Cricket. 8. Junior college. 9. Boll weevil.

"No Money in Public Retainers"

—By Bainbridge Colby—

One of the younger members of the Bar called on me the other day. Several years have passed since he came to me, as he was finishing his course at the law school, for advice as to where he should seek an opening for the practice of the law.

He had the good fortune to obtain a place in one of the larger law offices and has made good.

I asked him what he contemplated doing, in the way of public service, for he is a man of unusual capabilities—well read, a persuasive talker and with a personality that inspires liking as well as respect.

"Oh, nothing," said he. "I am confining myself to private practice. THERE IS NO MONEY IN A PUBLIC RETAINER."

There goes one more, I thought, and could not but reflect how few of the thousands who graduate from our colleges, and, at the threshold of their lives, have the benefit of systematic instruction in the history of our institutions; who are taught the duty of the citizen and understand so much better than the generality of men the dangers that encircle the State, the city and the nation; how few are able to stand up under the downward pull of easy promotion, monetary success and the patronage and countenance of those who can dispense or withhold the so-called good things of life.

"It is better to lie a little than to be unhappy much," said one of the characters in the play, "The Darling of the Gods."

Perhaps it is this thought which wars against the promptings of our better selves and makes us forget America—the dream country of our forefathers—in the compromises with truth and surrenders of principle that line "the easiest way."

In truth, "there is no money in a public retainer," at least relatively to the gains from other service. But this does not justify us in allowing life in the finer view, with its opportunities for disinterested striving and high adventure, to slip through our grasp.

NOT SUCH A MAN WAS THEODORE ROOSEVELT!

Writing in his "Autobiography," of his first term in the New York Legislature, when his independence had not only alarmed his party but startled the conservative elements in the State, he says:

"Various men whom I have known socially, and had been taught to look up to, prominent business men and lawyers, acted in a way which not only astounded me, but which I was quite unable to reconcile with the theories I had formed as to their high standing."

He relates a conversation with a member of a prominent law firm, an old family friend, who "explained that I had done well in the Legislature, that it was a good thing to have made the "reform play"; that I had shown that I possessed ability such as would make me useful in THE RIGHT KIND OF LAW OFFICE or business concern; but that I must not overplay my hand; that I had gone far enough, and that now was the TIME TO LEAVE POLITICS and to IDENTIFY MYSELF WITH THE RIGHT KIND OF PEOPLE, THE PEOPLE WHO WOULD ALWAYS, in the long run, CONTROL OTHERS AND OBTAIN THE REAL REWARDS WHICH WERE WORTH HAVING.

"I asked him if that meant that I was to yield to the 'ring' in politics. He answered, somewhat impatiently, that I was entirely mistaken about there being a 'political ring' of the kind of which the papers were fond of talking; that the 'ring,' if it could be called such—that is, THE 'INNER CIRCLE'—INCLUDED CERTAIN BIG BUSINESS MEN AND THE POLITICIANS, LAWYERS AND JUDGES, WHO WERE IN ALLIANCE WITH, AND TO A CERTAIN EXTENT, DEPENDENT UPON THEM, and that THE SUCCESSFUL MAN HAD TO WIN HIS SUCCESS BY THE BACKING OF THE SAME FORCES, WHETHER IN LAW, BUSINESS OR POLITICS."

"This," Roosevelt added, "was the first glimpse I had of that combination between business and politics which it was in after years so often to oppose."

What a legacy of high-mindedness and courage the Colonel left to his countrymen. Let not the lessons of his life grow dim. Let us keep them burnished bright.

Never have we stood in greater need of them.

With crime stalking through the land, and corruption looked upon as innocent and practiced without apology or concealment, we may well pause and consider the extent to which the appalling conditions of today are due to bad citizenship and an almost swinish insensibility to our public duties.

Just Folks

Those Duty Calls

When bill collectors call on me
I know that duty sends them.
They do not come my books to see
Though I'm a man who lends them.
Nor do they come to chat a while
Or ask me how I'm feeling,
Their visit, howsoe'er they smile,
Is just a business dealing.

A plumber makes a duty call
When pipes of ours are leaking.
He may not like the house at all,
Our friendship he's not seeking.
He comes because he's sent to see
What's wrong and to correct it,
And leaves without goodbye to me,
What's more, I don't expect it.

But friendship sometimes takes a way
How often man is heard to say:
"Because it is my duty
I'm going to call on Jim or Joe
And say a word to cheer him.
I really think I ought to go
Because I'm living near him."
These social duty calls I hate
With bitter detestation.
I want no one to swing my gate
To quit an obligation.
Alone I'd rather twirl my thumbs
Than give a moment's thought to
The prondest visitor who comes
